Swarthmore College

A Reminiscent History

THE GERMINAL idea of a school where both sexes might have equal advantages in higher education was in the minds of certain members of the Society of Friends for some years before it took definite shape in the founding of Swarthmore College. The first movement in the real beginning of the college came largely through the activities of Martha Tyson, of Baltimore, and Benjamin Hallowell, then living at Alexandria, Virginia. A Joint Committee of Friends from New York, Philadelphia, and Baltimore, was appointed, and this Committee issued an address in 1861, setting forth the desirability of establishing "a boarding school for Friends' children and for the education of teachers." One hundred and fifty thousand dollars was named for the purchase of a farm and the erection of suitable buildings, and a Board of Managers was elected when one-half of the aforesaid sum was subscribed. This was the foundation of Swarthmore College. On the tenth of May, 1866, the cornerstone was laid, and at the suggestion of Benjamin Hallowell's wife the college was called "Swarthmore," from

GEORGE FOX'S RESIDENCE

Swarthmore Hall, the home of George Fox, near Ulverstone, in the County of Westmoreland, England. (The name is properly "Swarthmoor," a much more beautiful and appropriate name than the existing meaningless termination. If a society should ever be organized for the re-establishment of the rightful names of places, this will probably receive attention).

Three and a half years after this event, on the eighth day of November, 1869, the college was opened, with about one hundred and seventy students and a faculty of four members. A notable fact is that the instructor in Pure Mathematics this first year was Miss Susan J. Cunningham, who subsequently became full professor, retiring a few years ago. As Friends from New York, Philadelphia, and Baltimore, were all equally interested in the founding and future of the college, the selection of the site of Swarthmore was possibly a geographical one, from its central position in relation to the three cities. It is a wonderful location on an upland terrace overlooking the valley of the Delaware.

Immediately to the west of the college is the heavily wooded slope of the Crum valley, and to the back there stretches a rolling farm country with much fine woodland. The Swarthmore campus is almost unique in the natural beauty of its expansive slope and surrounding rural landscape.

THE BENJAMIN WEST HOUSE

Baltimore Pike). Cedar Lane is the northern part of this old road to-day. Just where it passed the West House there is still to be seen an ancient stone horse block. The present site of the girls' tennis courts and hockey field was for many years a piece of fallow that sloped gently up toward the college, and here, about the time of spring vacation, a great many daffodils bloomed—escapes no doubt from an old dooryard garden, for all we know possibly from some old English bulbs. Dean Bond later had them all dug up and replanted in the flower beds, where you may still find them taking "the winds of March with beauty."

Benjamin's birth in the old house was a somewhat haphazard circumstance (a bit fortuitous for Swarthmoreans), for his family moved there temporarily from Chester at the time the great yellow fever epidemic. When the railroad was run through from Philadelphia to West Chester in 1858, a station was built just west of the present road crossing and on this side of the track, and called Westdale. The old willows that stood so long at the lower end of the campus (the last one was cut down this past fall) are said to mark the site of a springhouse about which they grew.

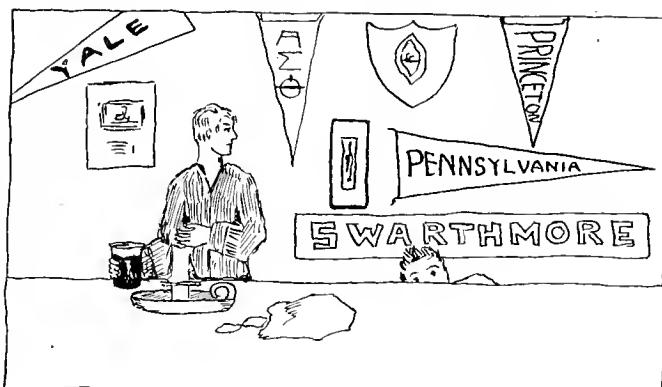

Edward Parrish was the first President of Swarthmore, and his memory is commemorated in "Parrish Hall." He was succeeded by Edward H. Magill, who was President from 1871 to 1889. Doctor Magill was a master of the old school, and Swarthmore will ever remain his debtor. To him belongs the credit of all those early years of the college life—years when it was growing from the boarding school toward the college ideal. I was fortunate enough to come to Swarthmore before Doctor Magill's administration closed. In April, 1888, I first met him, when I was a candidate for the Chair of Biology. He took me into his office, I remember, and showed me a wonderful scheme that he had invented for arranging the program of class work. A large board was fastened against the wall, and this was divided by lines, vertical and horizontal, into spaces to represent the days of the week and the hours of each working day. In these spaces auger holes were bored, into which corks fitted, each cork having pasted on its top the name of some course. Doctor Magill would play a regular game, moving these corks about to get the courses in their right places and avoid conflicts. It was a great old time-table, and very graphic.

THE FURTIVE CANDLE

Physiology for the young men. Every other hour of daylight was marked "Work in the Museum." Beside all this, I took charge of study hour in Collection Hall three evenings a week for an hour and a half, and the third and fourth West Wing floors all the rest of those evenings. They were some evenings. Lights went out somewhere around nine o'clock; after that I was supposed to go on a still hunt, looking out for illicit candles. Once I was invited by certain boys—Morris Clothier, "Lex" Cummins, "Bill" Sproul, and other kindred spirits—to a late and clandestine "feed." I went, had a good time, and said nothing about it. Dean Bond (Elizabeth Powell Bond) was then styled "Matron," a charming woman whom we all love and who is still with us at times.

I met Doctor William Hyde Appleton that spring of '88, and began one of the finest friendships I have known. His influence at Swarthmore has been unique, and no matter how hackneyed the phrase may be, one thinks of Doctor Appleton always as "the gentleman and the scholar," and it is the privilege of many to know him more intimately as "friend." Miss Esther T. Moore (now Mrs. Appleton) was then Registrar, and she helped us all, especially Doctor Magill with the cork game. Another good friend of mine was Miss Cunningham, and we still meet occasionally and renew old times. Arthur Beardsley was Professor of Engineering, and the men he turned out are his monument. Gerrit Weaver was Professor of German. He was a good amateur naturalist and an altogether delightful fellow, who passed from our midst too soon. He it was who showed me how to make a cuspidor out of a waste basket, by building a sort of rats' nest. We were in great jeopardy in those days—we users of the "vile weed." I was reported once by a Co-ed for riding in "the smoker." (I don't think she was a very pretty Co-ed and that made it not so bad). The largest font of type used in the catalogues of those days, aside from the cover, referred in no uncertain terms to the use of tobacco. Doctor Magill almost rivalled James the Second in his famous "Counterblast"—the insidious habit, the hellward slope, alcoholic sclerosis hobnailed liver, were pictured in lurid colors. And yet I am still living, and comparatively sane and well.

Magill had a very effective way of getting students to own up as participants in some disturbance. He would harangue the student body at Collection or some other time, and then, holding a folded paper in his hand, would say: "I have the names of all those students who were in that disturbance right here in my hand; it is useless for you to try to evade this." What the good doctor held was the pages from the catalogue, with the list of all students. It was a good joke, too good to keep, and the President himself, I believe, finally gave it away. We always looked for trouble on the floors at Hallowe'en, and were not disappointed. That autumn of '88, when I was on duty, some boy had a cow-bell that jangled loudly in various parts of the West Wing "oft in the still night." For several nights Doctor Magill sat up with me into the wee, small hours. I can see him now in his wrapper, scouting around like an Indian. He thoroughly enjoyed the sport of still hunting. That bell seemed possessed; it could not be located. After several nights of scout work, I went home for some days with tonsilitis. Before I got back to college I received a post card from Doctor Magill, wishing me a speedy recovery, and adding, "Have got the bell." That was Doctor Magill; but do not misunderstand; he was a great teacher, too, and in those days a college "prex" had to be a bit stiff as a disciplinarian.

When Doctor Magill resigned in 1889, and took the Chair of French, after a year abroad, Doctor William H. Appleton was elected President of the college and served three years, but resigned at the end of that time, preferring the life of a scholar. "Trotter, 'Uneasy lies the head that wears a crown,'" he once remarked. During these years, "Will" Hall was the "Supe." He was the brother of Mrs. Chester Roberts; a most lovable man, and his memory will always live in the hearts of those who knew him, and in the gymnasium that honors his name. Our Librarian, John Russell Hayes, poet and book-lover, and delightful friend, graduated in 1888, the year I came, and later was appointed instructor in English. I recall, too, William Penn Holcomb, the Professor of History, (Doctor Hull came in the early nineties); Ferris W. Price, Professor of Latin, an accomplished botanist and a kindly friend; and William C. Day, the Professor of Chemistry. Day was an earnest man, and was, if I remember, the one who started the Joseph Leidy Scientific Society. By his untimely illness and death the college lost a strong, good man. This puts me in mind of Leidy, a name famous throughout the scientific world. He was the first Professor of Biology at Swarthmore, and the founder of the Museum Collection. After his resignation on account of advancing years, Doctor Charles Dolly held the post for three years, and I was appointed after he resigned. It is a somewhat curious coincidence, but neither of the three professors of Biology has ever lived at Swarthmore. The splendid collection that Doctor Leidy had labored so hard to build up during the early years, was utterly destroyed at the time of the great fire in 1882. The fire occurred some years before I came, and by that time Leidy had built up a second natural history collection. When I first came to Swarthmore, the word "Biology" was not in use as a departmental term; I was appointed Professor of Natural History, and I often think that it is quite as appropriate and needs less of an explanation to beginners.

There are many others who come to mind, but space forbids—only the name of Benjamin Smith, a fatherly man who lived with his wife on the first floor West, in what are now, I think, Doctor Baldwin's rooms, and who helped run the study hour and the floors (we worked alternate nights). When off police duty, Smith taught rhetoric. The story goes that he once got shut in a folding bed, and Mrs. Smith had to get him out. He was a bit timid of high places, and being a married man (I was not at the time) once asked me to creep along the outside ledge of the fourth floor, in a nor'west gale, and look in certain windows for boys supposed to have gone down the fire escape and across country to Morton for a night off. That night I realized that, though I had no degree of A.B., I was entitled to it—not Bachelor of Arts in my case, but "able-bodied seaman."

ON THE CORNICE IN A GALE

I lived in the college for three months; that was in the days of the Preparatory School, the three classes of which, together with the Freshmen, occupied the present Collection Hall in the evening, studying at desks for an hour and a half. I sat on the platform looking over this studious (?) throng (likewise overlooking much). Upper classmen were given to appearing at the doors of the dark gallery above, and throwing divers unseemly articles at these innocents.

This life was too strenuous for me, and when George A. Hoadley came, in November, 1888, I asked to have the police job turned over to him. From that time on I became a communter. Hoadley is a fine type of the New England man, resourceful, versatile, and a good friend of his students and colleagues. I think it was the late President Birdsall who once remarked that Hoadley was the "wheel horse" of the faculty. He certainly took the heavy end of a great deal of the work of administration for many years. After Doctor Appleton resigned, Charles De Garmo was elected President and served seven years. He was an enthusiastic man, fresh from the Middle West, rich in pedagogical ideas, six-foot in his stockings and "bearded like a pard." De Garmo went to Cornell as Professor of Education, and the presidential mantle fell on William W. Birdsall, of the Friends' Central School, a man of high purpose. In 1902 came our own well-beloved President Swain. As you see, I have been through five administrations.

When I first came to Swarthmore, there was nothing but open country to the south of the railroad. "Tom" Dolphin (the present deputy postmaster) ran the old post office in a little shack on the other side of the platform. The old station had steps leading up to the waiting room, and Ellis Yarnall, the present station-master, and his wife have been there since before my time. The double track system ended just east of the road crossing; Michael was not here then, and the crossing was unguarded except for the switchman. The oaks along the asphaltum were runts. There was no library building; no Somerville Hall; no Wharton Hall. The boys' "gym" was in an old ramshackle building by the laundry. Whittier Field had just been completed, and "Doc" Shell was the Physical Director. Before this time, football was played on the lower part of the campus, and the grass tennis courts were along the walk in front of Parrish Hall. There was no "pie shop" nearer than Media; no trolley line during the first half dozen years after I came. The Sproul Observatory is on the site where the President's house once stood. Chemistry, Physics, and Engineering were all done in the Science Building.

MICHAEL ON GUARD

Among the present members of the faculty who have been in college as students during my time, and some of them in my classes, are Battin, Baldwin, Robinson, Fussell, Palmer, Johnson, Gilkyson, Hicks, Mrs. Newport, Mrs. Griffin, Miss Peirce, Miss Walker, Miss Oliver, and Miss Vest and Miss Burnett of last year's graduating class. Of other members of the college staff—Miss Coale, the pleasant Matron of Wharton, came in the early nineties; Miss Lukens has cheerfully dispensed all needful things from the same little old book room these many years, and she was a student here and took her degree back in the nineties. I think she was in one of my classes. I used to meet her at Mrs. Townsend's table (Mrs. Townsend was Housekeeper in the early times, and died here). We had much good times at her table, with extra good things in the way of food. Here Miss Cunningham would sometimes come, and regale us with her opinion of certain students (always entertaining and very much to the point). The library used to be presided over by Miss Nowell, a kindly lady and a lover of wild flowers. The old library was in a room that is now part of the English class work, opposite Collection Hall. Frank Getz, the gardener, and "Johnny" Honan, the engineer, were here when I came, and are still here. Mr. Durnall has run the farm for many years, though he came after Franklin Hall, who was here when I arrived. "Billy" Mullen and "Johnny" Hayman were faithful souls that have passed away, as the tablets on the wall of the lower hall will tell us. George Highbarger has been working year in and year out in the same little shop. He came a few years after I did. "Bridget," I believe, is still with us. She was here long before my time, possibly a survival of the Pleistocene.

"BRIDGET"

And so it goes. I was asked to write a short history of Swarthmore; I am afraid it has turned out to be a history of my own reminiscences, and mainly trifling incidents at that. It is curious how trifling incidents bulk so large in one's memory, but then a man's life is a web of trifling incidents, and history is the sum of the lives and activities of many men through succeeding generations. From the point of view of one man, this sketch, then, might be regarded as a small part of college history.

SPENCER TROTTER.

MISS LUKENS

Some of Swarthmore's Old Timers

THE Meeting House and the Cherry Tree, both hoary with age, have been sung in lyric and blank verse ever since THE HALCYON first flapped his wings over the College with the Cupola. Crum Creek also—naughty stream, thou dost nowadays flaunt an unbecoming and un-Swarthmorean tint of garnet, and wouldst sadly offend the artistic sense of the New York Swarthmore Club (see Dr. Roy's letter—"Can Pink and Magenta With Loyalty Be Called Garnet?"—published in The Phoenix). Aliarum rerum laudes cano, and I will begin with the Alligator.

The Alligator represents the spirit of our woods incarnate. Although the Classical Department, abetted by the Fine Arts, would with indulgence allow us still to people our groves with dryads, fauns, and Pan himself, practical and unpoetic Pedagogy says nay; that we could not pass the test offered to a child of eight years did we believe in such psychological delusions; and that neither itself nor staid Philosophy can allow us more than the Alligator. Well, thousands of students have eaten sandwiches and sausages upon his rugged back, and thousands more will probably partake there of the same delicacies. We wonder whether the viands served at splendid banquets to our Senator Sproul, Morris Clothier, A. Mitchell Palmer, et les autres, are seasoned with the same "sauce" which they used to taste when feasting near the Alligator. And we would fain ask Mrs. Helen Magill White if she found the dishes upon kings' tables more delicious than the impromptu spreads of yore beneath the Swarthmore trees.

Our next Old timers come in a group—the Ivies of Parrish Hall. If you will examine their individual biographies, you will be surprised to discover their aristocratic connections. Few are of plebeian origin, most of them having been brought from conservative colleges and minsters, castles and palaces. Were the Ivies introduced at Swarthmore to teach the feminine portion of our student body the mediaeval lesson of the Clinging Vine? Thou shade of dear Lucretia Mott, and ye more substantial shadows of Hannah

THE ALLIGATOR

Clothier Hull, Mary Hibbard Thatcher, and Ellen Evans Price, no! They were put here to impart the object lesson that tender and not self-seeking vines are willing to cover the blemishes of sterner stuff, and that they remain faithful to their early attachments.

THE HALCYON OF NINETEEN SEVENTEEN

Within Parrish the Old Timers are fast disappearing, but a few still persist. Among them is Isaac T. Hopper. Not many colleges can boast so stunning an ancestor. Indeed, a distinguished visitor was once heard to remark that our good Friend's picture was worth to an institution at least a Physics building plus a whole Faculty to administer physic.

Then why, friend Isaac, hast thou abandoned thy old haunts, to hide outside behind the door of Collection Hall? It must have been either to express thy disapproval of the stage effects sometimes seen within, or to aid Student Government in chaperoning the alcovistes. Or, perhaps, the Department of History is punishing thee for bearing upon thy face an expression alien to peace—something approaching belligerency.

Familiar to all Swarthmoreans is another Old Timer, the famous Collection Room Clock. For decades it gazed solemnly upon the assembled students, measuring out to them their full quarter with a precision worthy of the Department of Mathematics. But approaching age rendered its voice weak in comparison with the tones of the Majors in Public Speaking. So it fled to the Superintendent's office, where it now looks down benignly upon the world of affairs and follows practical courses in Economics.

Before leaving Parrish, let us drop a tear to the memory of a defunct Old Timer—the College Pump. In the olden days, when the Department of Chemistry was less sumptuously housed and the Department of Biology too busy to pursue Hygiene strenuously, the Pump vied with the Central Alcoves as a place of rendezvous. There groups could often be seen, plying one another with draughts of cold, sparkling, delicious, germy H.O. Now we take our drinks hygienic, warm, and inside. Requiescas in pace, Old Pump! Not a splinter of thine architecture remains; not all the science in the Department of Engineering could resurrect thy handle; thou art longer but a moist and bibulous memory.

THE IVIES OF PARRISH

THE CHERRY TREE

thou fertile one much sought by the muse, we find here traces of thy first lisplings, a few words from "Ode to a Caterpillar" and "E. G.'s Eyes."

We must now speed over the east campus to our next Old Timer. But it is impossible to pass the ancient Cherry Tree without a few reflections. Ha, Ha! Professor T. A. Jenkins! So it was here thee first practiced whittling, and became so adept that thee can hew a Romanic word from an almost impossible Latin etymon. And it was here, Mr. David B. Rushmore and Mr. Joseph Fitch, that you cut your early figures, you who now cut such big ones in the engineering world, or as a magistrate and ex-assemblyman. Dr. Edward B. Martin, thee also did a little carving here, in preparation, we suppose, for thy arduous duties as host to the football team, and also for thy brave labors at a different kind of table. And "J. R. H." our Very Own, her aesthetic charm, lie not only in her woods and river and gracefully sloping swards, but also in the historical touches that dot her campus. Of these the Benjamin West House is naturally the most important. Go read the inscription upon its venerable side and reflect upon the necessity of achieving something in life, if you would have your names endure and be known to men when you become Old Timers.

And now our last subject, Michael at the station. In the picture of Swarthmore, upon which you will look back in future years, personalities will stand forth vividly. In high relief will be this old Celtic figure, Michael in his life-saving station. For more than seventeen years Michael's keen eyes have been piercing the invisible, his even keener nose has been ferreting out the odor of smoke long before the trains left Media or Morton. In all this time his vigilance has never slackened, his fidelity has never wavered. Nor have his manners. We could all learn many lessons in patience, reliability, and courtesy from the Irish Michael.

ISABELLE BRONK.

T. WALTER GILKYSON

The Swarthmore College Alumni Association

ON the 8th of May, 1875, the classes of '73 and '74 made the first plans for the organization of the Alumni Association. On May 29th, 1875, the constitution was adopted, and in 1881 the charter of the Association was obtained; the Association was incorporated on January 16th, 1882. From that time to the present day, the Association has carried on its work, endeavoring, to the best of its ability, (to use the words of the constitution) "to promote union and good feeling among Alumni, and to advance in all proper ways the interests of Swarthmore College."

Western Swarthmore Club

THE Western Swarthmore Club was organized in December, 1903. It started at an informal dinner where about a dozen former Swarthmoreans had gathered to listen to ex-President Magill. A happy suggestion resulted in the immediate formation of the Chicago Swarthmore Club. Upon electing Francis E. Broomell, '93, Secretary and Treasurer, the Club began to take on a larger aspect. It was reorganized and named the Western Swarthmore Club, now with a membership of over sixty. From that time it has grown until the Secretary has on his lists over three hundred names of graduates and ex-students.

Although still young, the Western Swarthmore Club is very active. It provides an outlet for the Swarthmore spirit of the West. Chief among its activities is a scholarship, which is offered annually by competition to all preparatory and high schools west of the Allegheny Mountains. The Club sent its tenth scholar to college last fall and has induced many more to select Swarthmore as a college home. By means of the competitive scholarship, all the principal schools of the West hear of Swarthmore, and the scholars carry her good name wherever they go. The Western Swarthmore Club has proved loyal to its Alma Mater, not by words but by deeds.

Trenton Swarthmore Club

THE Trenton Swarthmore Club is an organization composed of about thirty Swarthmoreans of Trenton, N. J., formed primarily for the purpose of furnishing a scholarship in Swarthmore College to the preparatory schools of Trenton and vicinity.

The organization offers yearly a full, free competitive honor scholarship of $400, which is awarded to the most worthy male applicant from the neighboring territory; this includes seven of the most prominent preparatory schools within a radius of ten miles.

The requirements for application are based somewhat on those of the Rhodes Scholarship, and embrace scholarship, character, moral force, and physical development. The purpose of the award is to induce men from that vicinity to enter Swarthmore, the aim of the committee being to attract and develop all-around men, since no particular stress is given to any one line of activity.

The Swarthmore Club of New York

THE Swarthmore Club of New York was organized in 1913, and was the outgrowth of informal gatherings which had been held annually since 1908. All Swarthmore men, graduates and ex-students, who reside within 50 miles of New York City, are eligible to membership. The annual dues of the Club are $2.00 and the present membership is 107, which is about three-fourths of those eligible.

The objects of the Club are primarily social, the aim being to provide an opportunity for Swarthmore men to gather informally and keep up and renew old friendships. The Club has also served the important function of keeping its members in touch with the new Swarthmore, and alive to the active work being done at the college and the changes and developments which are constantly taking place. A third object of the Club is the advancement of the college interests in New York.

In 1915 there were two meetings, both of which were held at the Aldine Club; the first on April 9, and the second on December 10, 1915. At the former meeting, the Club was addressed by Dr. Swain on the objects of a college education, and at the latter by the Honorable Frederick C. Hicks, ex-'93, Congressman, who entertained the Club with a travelogue on "Ancient Ruins."

The Philadelphia Swarthmore Club

THE Philadelphia Swarthmore Club was founded in 1889. Good fellowship and love of Alma Mater have been the keystone in the arch of the Club's continued success. Since 1899, the Club has held without interruption an annual meeting and dinner, the Philadelphia Association being the only one with such a record. The dinner this year was held on February 26. The first annual dinner, held on April 14, 1889, was attended by some sixty members. The attendance now averages about one hundred and seventy-five. The Club has never had any regular officers, but it is the practice to appoint each year a committee to take charge of the following year's meeting and dinner. During his life time, Mr. Gerrit E. H. Weaver was the moving spirit and chairman of this committee. From the date of his death until 1914 Howard Cooper Johnson acted as chairman. For the past two years, Charles C. Miller, of Riverton, N. J., has headed the committee.

Her disposition is mighty sweet;
So here's to our Olga, "tres petite."

HAROLD AINSWORTH, Φ Σ K

SWARTHMORE

Political Science

Take an ounce of pepper; mix well with a grain of common sense; add a spoonful of lacrosse and a pinch of basketball. Put in enough water to swim in, and season to taste with a lackadaisical sense of humor.

CLEMENT JOSEPH ALDERFER, T A O

RENOVO

Political Science

"Gee, did you see them guys? Ain't they some big brutes? Remind me of some of the coal-heavers around the Renovo diggins. I bet them mountain-movers can play basketball some!" In this cheerful way Clem encourages the team just before a game. Alas! Swarthmore is not what it used to be to him, for now that his Aunt Mary is married, Clem spends a lonesome hour at First-day Meeting.

MARGARET ALLEN

WOODSTOWN, N. J.

History

Our Margaret was a quiet girl
When first to us she came,
But since she's come to Swarthmore
She's never been the same.

This may be complimentary,
And then it may not be;
Just take it either way you like,
She's not the same, you see.

JAMES WILSON AMES, ΦΣΚ

HAWLEY

History

Live with "Red" for a year, and you will be firmly convinced that the Irish are not a race, but a disposition. Always ready to laugh, or sing Kipling to extemporaneous tunes; what! you've never heard Red sing? Go North, young man, to Old North!

MARY CLEAVER ATKINSON

TRENTON, N. J.

Psychology and Education

Quiet and studious Mary—chief prize winner in the Avalon Literary Browning Contest. Go down to the library any afternoon, and over in some out-of-the-way nook you'll find Mary, oblivious to the hurry and worry of surrounding humanity. Should you charge her with being a book-worm, she'll roll up her eyes after the manner of a timid but friendly rabbit, and drawl out: "Oh, thee's mistaken."

THE HALCYON OF NINETEEN SEVENTEEN

LYNN HAMILTON BAILEY, T A O

LEONIA, N. J.

Civil Engineering

Bailey is loquacious and oratorical on all occasions, but he has two favorite subjects: (1) Camden (a place in New Jersey); (2) "The Poetry of Modern Engineering." In extemp. contests he always discusses engineering, whether the subject drawn is "The Latest Book" or "Modern Poetry." He often comes into your room, with knitted brow, for a few serious words on modern efficiency, and leaves about 11:30 P. M., remarking that he hasn't had a chance to look at a single lesson for tomorrow.

FRANCES HAWKE BAKER

CHESTER

English

She comes, rain or shine, on the trolley each morn,
And in the asphaltum a pathway has worn.
She smiles when she meets you, the bell rings, and then—
It's classes and hockey and Chester again.

BOYD TERHUNE BARNARD, K S

WINFIELD, KAN.

Economics

Did he shave in the dark, or has he run out of Gillette blades? Neither, gentle reader; the sienna-tinted down adorning his lips was left there purposely, to reinforce the tone of his cornet. As the result of training in the Swarthmore Instrumental Club, "Sandy" was able to direct our Soph Show, and to play in the Philadelphia Band. We used to let him sing in the Glee Club, too, but decreasing attendance soon convinced us that Sandy's talents are instrumental rather than vocal.

JOHN WESLEY BELL
LEBANON, IND.

Political Science

Johnny doesn't talk a great deal, but 'tis rumored that he once whispered in private councils that he is the third great man to come from Lebanon—Governor Ralston and Dean Alexander being the others. Johnny insists that the trouble with most students is that they know a thing so well, they don't know it at all. And so well does he practice this philosophy in the War course, that we doubt whether Doctor Brooks can bring himself to let Johnny leave.

CHARLES GRANNISS BONNER, T A O
PHILADELPHIA

Mechanical Engineering

History tells us that many, many years ago, before the day of the telegraph and wireless, a youth ran something like twenty-six miles to carry news of the battle of Marathon. Those of us who have watched Bonner's winged feet fly fleetly over hill and dale in a cross-country run, or have seen him outstrip man after man on the cinders, cannot help suspecting that his genealogy might be traced back to that hero of Marathon. Granniss himself firmly denies any such connection, but he is such a modest chap that we can't take his statement as absolute authority.

LEON WILLARD BRIGGS

TRENTON, N. J.

Economics

Picture to yourself a big Morris chair in a smoke-filled room. Add to this a figure in a gray shirt, curled up like a hairpin—knees under chin, feet on chair cushions, smoke curling upward from a favorite "jimmy"—and you have "Briggy." And we must not forget his "gift of gab." Absolutely the latest dope on all sports and courses, Doc Brook's classes preferred. Topics and pipe-load being exhausted, Briggy uncurls his feet, knocks out the ashes, and quietly goes in search of "more worlds to conquer."

RICHARD DAVIS BROOKE,  $\Phi \Sigma K$

PHILADELPHIA

English

Dick once wrote an oration which proved that all great men attain their greatness before they are thirty-three. This leaves him just a dozen years in which to carry out his inordinate ambition. Dick swears that his name will some day be in everybody's mouth, even if he has to have it printed on a million tooth-picks, and distribute them free.

ELLWOOD MORRIS BURDSALL,  $\Phi K \Psi$
PORT CHESTER, N. Y.

Economics

SOLID COMFORT! Not Palm Beach in February; but a jimmy pipe, a Morris chair (any chair in Burdsall's room), and the Pan-Hellenic Quartette—too busy to sing! We would rather sit at the feet of Morris' mandolin for five minutes, than be reared with Socrates as a tutor and Plato as a playmate.

RICHARD LLOYD BURDSALL,  $\Phi K \Psi$
PORT CHESTER, N. Y.

Mechanical Engineering

It is a good thing that Swarthmore gives only an A.B. degree, for if there were any such thing as an A or A+ degree, it would be just natural for Dick to walk off with it. Note that we say walk off, for Dick's speed is famous for its absence.

We all have read the fable of the rabbit and the snail,
And we have all imagined it a good old fairy tale;
But since we've entered Swarthmore the proofs have come in thick,
That the man who wrote that story must have known our Speed King Dick.

ISAAC CARPENTER, JR.

Economics

This smooth-faced, silken-haired New Yorker is something of a humorist. With his dry wit he sets the hall roaring, to the disgust of his highly artistic room-mate, who takes refuge in peaceful slumber. Thereupon Ike, the boy desperado, shades the light above the shelves of Ibsen, Wilde, and Maeterlinck; quietly tiptoes to the closet, whence from an unknown depth he rescues the Popular Magazine or some similar heart-throbber, and proceeds to literarily dissipate.

HELEN CATHARINE CLARK

Economics

If you are homesick, broke, back in reports, or if she didn't speak to you at dinner, go over and see Bill, and if you can harmonize—

The night shall be filled with music,
And the cares that infest the week
Shall fold their tents like the Arabs,
And as silently take a sneak.

MARGARET MEYERS CLEMENS

WEST CHESTER

English

Yes, she's little; but just listen to her quick, business-like conversation, watch the merry little twinkle in her eye, and you will have to admit that, although she is tiny, here is a mighty plucky little Seventeen.

HELEN COLES, K A Θ
MERCHANTVILLE, N. J.

Public Speaking

When first I saw sweet "Jody"
    'Twas on the hockey field;
With Jody playing center half,
    Our rival's fate was sealed.

Again I saw our Jody,
    'Twas in the footlight's gleam;
As "Jane" and "Cousin Hebe,"
    Her acting was a dream.

And so it goes in everything,
    From plays to making goals;
She shines—the best old sport there is;
    Here's to you, Helen Coles!

ROY CLIFTON COMLEY, K Σ

LEBANON, IND.

Chemistry

Roy is a man whom no one dares to kid. No, he is not a grouch; nor is he hot-headed. On the contrary, he is most congenial and pleasant. But—and here is the secret—Roy spends his summers and vacations as an undertaker; and there's an old saying, "You can kid an undertaker for a while but he'll nail you in the end." Before going to bed, drop into Roy's room for a nice social chat, and he'll tell you all about his profession, and how you could be reduced to a few ashes by a simple application of heat.

"Methought I heard a voice cry, 'Sleep no more!
Comley does murder sleep.' "

REBECCA WILSON CONROW

RIVERTON, N. J.

Mathematics

"Beck" is essentially a farmer, having spent the greater part of her "salad days" in the wide outdoors, combating the famous Jersey mosquito. With such thorough training as this, we naturally expect in her an effervescence of athletic activity. To watch her savagely guarding on the basketball floor, or gazing pityingly on an unfortunate opponent of the "left wing" limping from the hockey field, who can doubt that those mosquito-swatting have developed a muscle not to be sneezed at?

ELWOOD CARR CORNOG, Δ Y

ITHAN

Electrical Engineering

"To Swarthmore from Penn State"

was the address on the package. When the bundle was opened, out popped a full-fledged 'Varsity end. As a Sophomore he did great work for the team; his long arms had a very pleasant way of reaching round a bunch of players, and affectionately hugging the man with the ball. Finally the "jinx" got him, and a damaged shoulder kept him on the side lines.

ISAAC CLYDE CORNOG

CONCORDVILLE

Electrical Engineering

Clyde is one of our day-dodgers. Every morning he blows in, with his education under one arm and his lunch under the other. If you are in a hurry to see him, you can find him banqueting in the Palm Room of the Boys' Gymnasium, almost any day about noon. Clyde is also one of our famous peroxide blondes; some say this fact may account for his popularity with the co-eds.

RUTH CRAIGHEAD, II B Φ

HARRISBURG

Greek

"Craigy" is one of those delightful surprises that occasionally drift into a college community. When first she came, we thought her the ordinary frivolous Co-ed, but here she is on Student Exec. and Y. W. C. A. Cabinet. Needless to say, we enjoy being surprised; but, best of all, her responsibilities have not spoiled her—she is still frivolous!

ESTHER HELEN CULVER

QUOGUE, N. Y.

German

Cully's round, beaming face is usually seen peering over three massive volumes—Schiller, Goethe, and Lessing; but if, perchance, you hear somebody in the hall loudly complaining, vainly remonstrating, don't imagine it's the Parrish grouch; 'tis only Esther giving vent to her indignation over the loss of her German Dic. However, that same voice won its way over the footlights, when our leading chorus lady helped us reach Pinafore's B-flat.

HELEN DANIELS

Latin

"Where there's a will, there's a way," and trust Helen for finding that way. She can do anything from hockey, dancing, and mandolin-picking, to straight A's—and yet she has more leisure than anyone else. The only thing her will power can't control is her curls. Fuzzy? S-h-u-s-h!

CLARK WARREN DAVIS, ΔΥ

SOUTH OMAHA, NEB.

Chemical Engineering

"His College Career"

The latest work of a local novelist appears in print today. The plot has to do with Clark Davis, a tall young Westerner, who enters college as a homesick Freshman. By his great conversational powers, he wins first place in the famous Inter-collegiate Association of "Fussers." We are informed that the book is now being dramatized, and may be seen enacted on the campus of Swarthmore College any evening in spring.

LOUIS NICHOLS DAVIS

WEST CHESTER

Electrical Engineering

"Peace, children! 'Tis only Louis taking his circular glasses on their annual trip to the library." Other than this, the only glimpse you catch of this worthy member of Nineteen Seventeen is a view of his back as he steers his Stanley Steamer toward West Chester.

JUAN ANDRES DEL PIANO
BUENOS AIRES, ARGENTINE REPUBLIC

Civil Engineering

All the way from Argentine, to join our hundred strong.
He couldn't speak no English, so he brought a book along,
In which to look up menus, hotels, and railway trains;
And finally he grew so wise, he brought to us his brains.

ALLEN EDGAR DOWDY

MOORE

Chemical Engineering

We are sorry we do not see Moore of this member of our class. During the week he is Moore or less of an athlete, playing football, basketball and baseball in season. His stellar shape would be Moore apparent were it not for the brighter 'Varsity lights; but he's there just the same. At the end of the week, he retires into Moore obscurity until Monday morning.

PAUL DAVIS ENDICOTT, KΣ

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J.

Political Science

Whoever has made a trip to Swarthmore College must have seen "Judge," a towering blond, lumbering his way about the campus. In the fall, this youthful giant is much in evidence on the football field. Usually it becomes necessary, before the season is far advanced, to bandage Judge's hands—this giving us a combination of white hair and white paws, much resembling a polar bear clad in a garnet football uniform. And he is a "bear," too, when it comes to smashing up plays. If you doubt it, ask Haverford; and consult the list of those slated for the All-American.

MARIAN GOLDSBOROUGH FIRMIN

Mathematics

Hail to thee, bright spirit!
Dumb thou never wert,
Who is Math or Latin,
Speakest thy full part
In brainy strains of long premeditated art.

MARY HICKMAN GAWTHROP, II B Φ
KENNETT SQUARE

French

The Goths of Roman reign,
Who raised a lot of Cain,
Were noted for their strength and for their "pep."
They were foremost in the fight,
Conquered everyone in sight,
And always had a most exciting "rep."

The "Goth" before you here
(Sword or axe you need not fear!)
Is not at all destructive like her name;
But she's "pep" and "go" clear through,
First-class athlete,—fusser, too.
And the best old scout that ever played the game.

PAUL FLEMING GEMMILL
YORK
Greek

Have you ever seen a fellow who can turn bright red to yellow?
It is Gemmill.
He will take from you some money,
Twist his hands about it funny,
Out of it will come a bunny!
From this Gemmill.
Plants a seed and breathes upon it; grows an orange tree,
doggone it!
Does this Gemmill.
So I'll tell you once forever,
That the chances are you'll never
Meet a man that's quite so clever
As this Gemmill.

PAUL RAYMOND GIBSON, T A O
CHESTER

Chemical Engineering

"Gibby" always seems to have just stepped from the traditional bandbox. How he does it is the eighth wonder of the world. All day long he toils in the regions which reek with nauseating odors like unto the scent of ancient eggs; yet at evening he emerges as spick and span as though he were a clothes shop model.

LOUIS MAURICE GLICK

WEST CHESTER

Chemical Engineering

A student with an abundance of knowledge, and a famine of words; also a disciple of John Spargo and Eugene V. Debs.

Social—not so very much,
Has no use for girls and such;
Love for him is in his books,
Got no time for gentle looks.
Social—no, the name we twist,
Yet is he a Socialist!

MINNIE ELMA GOULD, Δ Γ
TOWSON, MD.

French

Minnie is about the littlest girl in our class, but in Sophomore year it was she who was foremost in terrorizing the Freshmen.

Minnie (to Freshman Girl): "Where did you get that cold?"

Freshman: "The halls around here were cold last night."

Minnie (sternly): "Is that any way to speak about your Alma Mater?"

FRED PYLE GUTELIUS, Δ Y

HOPEWELL, N. J.

Mechanical Engineering

"Fritz" is a product of the sandy soil of Jersey. At first we thought he was "picked" a little early, but since witnessing his destructive ability in lacrosse and in various Wharton "house cleanings," we are inclined to offer thanks for his rather diminutive size.

He is a suffragette! Who knows but that this bit of concentrated energy may some day be seen victoriously leading into his state capitol an army of Mrs. Pankhurst's disciples, armed with lacrosse sticks and baseball bats!

THEOA HAMILTON

FARGO, N. D.

Chemistry

"Little, but Oh, my!" we exclaimed when first we observed this latest wearer of the green, hippity-hopping about the halls. Theoa is quite irrepressible; but then her home is in the cyclone district of North Dakota, so that she probably comes by her breezy disposition naturally. About all we have learned of her tastes is that dancing is second nature to her, and that she dotes on tall men for partners; so beware! all ye of diminutive stature!

AIMEE DOROTHY HANSON

PERTH AMBOY, N. J.

Latin

"Rough and Ready," describes her perfectly. Her activity in the picture fight, Freshman year, will ever be remembered by all who were in this locality at the time. She wears a red coat and tortoise-rimmed glasses in an effort to conceal her Irish self; but it can't be did, Charley—it can't be did.

CHARLA GAIGE HULL

Latin

Charla doesn't intend to let the fact that she's a girl handicap in the slightest her choice of activities, for, after confiscating numerous girls' public speaking prizes, she enters the Potter Debates, tries annually for the 'Varsity Debate Team, and enrolls in such "masculine courses" as Political Science and Law. In addressing the class, the Professor of Law says: "Gentlemen and Miss Hull," but this is his only concession, for to hold her own in argument Charla needs no special privileges.

HELEN EUGENIE ICKES
NORWOOD

English

Silence reigns o'er the place of our ancestors. The clock clucks. The bell faintly tinkles. "Prexy" gathers himself together to relieve the groaning chair, when

A sudden rush from the stairway,
A sudden raid from the hall;
Though the door is shut before her,
She enters Collection Hall.
She almost collapses with puffing,
As though she has run from afar;
And we see she is inwardly cussing
The delay on the P. R. T. car.

HELEN FLAGG INGLIS
PHILADELPHIA

English

Our Helen's not airy,
Our Helen's no fairy,
Nor is she a "wisp of a thing;"
But she swims like a Naiad,
Can dance like a Dryad,
And sing like a lark on the wing.

EVERETT PHELPS IRWIN
CATSKILL, N. Y.

Biology

Coupled with an infatuation for transcendental aestheticism, this slender youth of graceful embellishments possesses an emotional sense of mellifluous synchronization—be its expression that of impressionistic art, or that of anatomical accomplishments. One would scarcely anticipate finding the same individual one instant delving into things poetic and ethereal, and the next, exploring the inner constituents of a cat or fish; but our Sir Joseph is "officially" of that disposition.

BEATRICE MAGILL JENKINS
CHICAGO, ILL.

English

"Here it comes!"

"There it goes!"

Did you see it flash around the corner into the English office? Missed it? Well, no wonder; it does take some practice. It was only Bee Jenkins galloping to class. When it comes to speed, she makes Dan Patch look like a three-legged race in a Home for War Veterans.

EMILY PARRY JOYCE, K A Θ

SWARTHMORE

Public Speaking

You know how those big pipe-organs work. Out in front a lot of noise and glory, but in behind there's always somebody pumping to make the thing go. Well, that's Em. Whether you hear about it or not, whether it's picnic eats, Soph Show scenery, dance decorations, or HALCYON, Emily is sure to be behind it—working.

She's got the "rep"!

She's got the "pep"!

MARIAN LINDA KEENE
LANSDOWNE

History

"Babe" may be recognized by her laugh. It is unlike anything else on earth, and once heard will haunt you for months. Beginning on high-G, and with the volume of a calliope, it descends the scale, introducing a series of trills, chuckles, and wheezes, and ending in a low gurgle, which quietly passes into a sigh.

FLORENCE KENNEDY, K K G

PHILADELPHIA

French

Freshman Year:

Star in hockey and basketball.

Much class spirit.

Sophomore Year:

Junior Year:

Affliction worse, by George!

Senior Year:

GEORGE MOORE KNOX

Mechanical Engineering

"Bottle" is our All-American automobile racer. He travels a great deal in his car, and is reported to have once made the run from West Chester to Swarthmore, alone and unaided, in a little less than two hours. To those especially interested in motoring, Bottle will gladly explain how he managed to survive the mental and physical strain of this tire-scorching trip.

ADOLPH KORN

CLIFTON HEIGHTS

Civil Engineering

We are told that he is German. If all the Teutons are like him, no wonder the war news is what it is. Once he makes up his mind to do a thing, he does it! If he wants to sell you a pennant or some typewriter paper, you might as well "shell out" at once, for Korn will stay until you do.

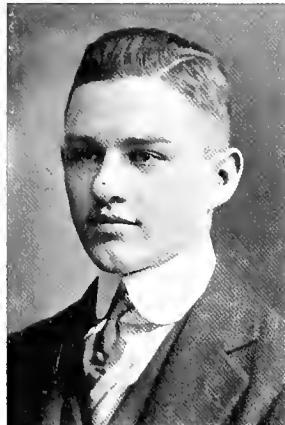

HILDA ANNA LANG, ΗΒΦ

RUTLEDGE

German

Saint Hilda was a learned lady,
Most wise, and dignified as queen;
She dwelt within her cloister shady:
Saint Hilda—seven-seventeen.

Our Hilda (though she's scarcely sainted!)

Wise, fair, with ancient tongues acquainted:
Saint (?) Hilda—nineteen-seventeen!

Take the same recipe as given for Ainsworth pudding. Leave out the grain of common sense, and substitute essence of baseball for lacrosse. Sprinkle with a goodly amount of Terpsichorean art. It will bake hard.

LOUISE KER LEWIS, K K T

WEST CHESTER

French

A soft musical sound like that of a babbling brook, flowing softly—oh, so very softly—reaches your ear. You wonder how a brook ever found its way into Parrish; then you spy Louise, and find that the music of the brook is really the soft melody of her deliberate speech. But just broach the subject of Woman Suffrage, and you will discover that back of that peaceful, quiet personality is enough explosive force to furnish a very creditable Fourth of July celebration.

RHODA ALICE LIPPINCOTT

SWARTHMORE

German

You might think that nature had left out of Rhoda's composition her usual gift to women, but no! The minute she crosses the sacred threshold of the Day Students' Room, Rhoda begins to talk. "Oh, girls, I just love the language courses they give here. I do wish Miss Peirce wouldn't lock the door after the second bell. I never waste time between classes, but I just can't get down stairs on time. You know—oh dear! there's that bell."

JAMES CLARENCE LUKENS, Δ Y

Economics

"Luky" strolls dreamily about with the good-natured indifference of an individual who doesn't know just where he's going but is open to conviction. He strolls into your domicile, and joins in a rough-house; he strolls into the Athenaeum room, and argues for the established order of things. But we must note two exceptions to this last statement. On the usually placid stream of Luky's thought have appeared two large ripples—socialism and hazing. Alas for the established order of things! Luky confesses a liking for socialism, while his fidelity to the great institution of hazing is avowedly weakening.

FRANCIS PATRICK McGOVERN, KΣ
CLEVELAND, O.

"Pat" is a Home-Rule Irishman, and consequently is always "agin the government," be it faculty or student government. Whenever he goes down town (about three times a day), Michael shouts out affectionately from his life-saving station: "The top o' the mornin' to ye, Patrick." Though formidable on the football field, in basketball he sometimes practices the Golden Rule; once, when his opponents were lagging too far behind, he even shot a basket for them.

FRANCES HELEN MAXWELL, Δ Γ

LANSDOWNE

Public Speaking

Frances declares that if she can't get a position on Junior Chautauqua next year, she is going to apply as tent pole. We believe she'll land the job. Some say that good goods come only in small packages, but Frances has convinced us that quantity and quality are sometimes found together, even if the package is long and thin.

WILLIAM RANDOLPH MOORE, JR., Δ Y

ROANOKE, VA.

Mechanical Engineering

When this Dixie lad entered Swarthmore from a technical school last fall, he was confronted by a serious problem. He did not know what kind of a class pennant to buy. First he fought with the Freshmen, and then, when "Alec" had looked over his records, he fought against them. After sticking by the Sophs for a while, he talked with Doctor Blessing, and found that if he carried a very heavy program, he would be rewarded with an invitation to the Junior dance. Thus, it was that the class of Seventeen acquired this "gemmaun frum de Souf."

You doubtless would feel rather blue
If you had met your Waterloo;

He is a wonder at debate,
An ardent suffrage advocate;
It was his size ('tis our belief)

ROSE MARGUERITE NEELY

German

Rose Marguerite is a language shark; she can speak German better than most of us speak English; she understands the French remarks and questions which Miss Bronk frequently emits around the halls. It was Rose who took the feather out of "featherweight"; but one wouldn't suspect it for a moment, for when it comes to dancing she can put many of our featherweights to shame.

Mechanical Engineering

It is true that modesty begets greatness, and that Napoleon himself was only five feet, four inches in height; yet we regret that "Pipps" likes obscurity so well. We feel that one so petit should assert himself at times. Were it not for his occasional "tum tum" on the mandolin, and the ringing of his Baby Ben every morning, you would think that he still subscribes to the dictum about little children being seen and not heard.

THE COLLEGE YEAR

The College Year

AS the traveler sits by the fireside, and in memory lives over again his experiences, recalling only the most striking incidents, and overlooking the long line of occurrences that stretch in between—so, in this section of our book, have we lived over the happenings since the publication of the 1916 HALCYON, selecting from the mass of recollections only the “high points.” The pages that follow are not presented as a history of the past college year, nor yet an outline of its chief incidents; they are offered rather as a succession of flash-light pictures—little intimate glimpses into the experiences which go to make up Swarthmore life.

The Return to College At about the time Old Sol is setting on the Autumnal Equinox, Swarthmore's scattered students begin their annual pilgrimage to their shrine of learning. This fall when the Whartonites trudged up the walk from the station, they found things somewhat changed; for the dream of a third section, uniting Old and New Wharton, was actually materializing. Already the masons had built up two stories of the new structure, which will soon add sixty rooms to the men's dormitories, and provide the much needed halls for Y. M. C. A. meetings and general recreation.

Registration Day Aside from the Wharton developments, the campus presented its usual appearance of perfect placidity. The next day this peace and quiet gave place to a bustle resembling a Russian mobilization. It was Registration Day, and enlistment in courses was accomplished by conscription for the Freshmen, and moral suasion for upperclassmen. Year after year, from out the buzz of conversation about the various tables in the gymnasium, fragments like these are heard: “Well, I wish Doctor _____ wouldn't talk to that Freshman all day;” “Oh dear! Here's another conflict. I can't possibly _____;” “No, Miss _____, the rule is that Freshmen must take mathematics their whole first year; that is to say, _____;” “Sure, you gotta sign up with ‘Ducky.’ We have compulsory Bible Training here.”

Wandering Freshmen, important Sophomores, and nonchalant upperclassmen form the ever changing groups that drift from one jaded, wanly-smiling professor to another. Everybody is feverishly consulting everybody else about courses, or piloting rudderless Freshmen from place to place.

Over in Parrish the endless line of matriculators, waiting for a chance at “Prexy” and Dean Alexander, resembles the mob that stormed Shibe Park during the last world's series. At last, when every

WHARTON ADDITION—BEGINNING

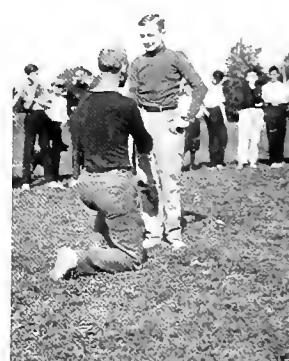

THE NEW SECTION UNDER WAY

Freshman has his Bible and Math straightened out, and has registered his birthplace, opinion of the war, and size of collar; when every green card has been sufficiently decorated with autographs, and has passed the censors in the Superintendent's office, and when the three hour-plan cards have been laboriously filled out and duly deposited; when, in a word, Registration Day is over, the tired students return to their rooms for a much-needed rest.

Class Scraps That the Freshman's initiation into the Swarthmore Chapter of the American College Fraternity (Kappan Gown) may be made more "impressive," a number of strenuous situations have been created, and are known as class scraps. They start on the second evening after the Freshman's arrival. Then he is kept up all night, tearing posters from board fences and telegraph poles, that he may familiarize himself with the typography of Swarthmore, and that he may learn, too, that there are things in this world more important than sleep. A few minutes before six, the following morning, he takes part in the Poster Fight, a confused jumble of Freshmen and Sophomores, at the conclusion of which scrap he is generally found sitting on a Senior, or trying to choke a fellow-Freshman.

During the next few days he is further "impressed" by the scream of whistles and the crack of firearms, for these noises rend the air the moment any members of his class fall into companionship—no matter for how upright a purpose.

A SWARTHMORE PROPOSAL

spirits are first humbled to the dust by orders to cast his shoes on the ground, well knowing that they will not be returned to him. "By request," he sings "Home, Sweet Home," using the laundry-list for words; he "scrambles like an egg"; and performs other remarkable feats before an appreciative college audience. The final event is the Keg Rush, and in this contest the Freshman usually "come back" with a vengeance, and by force of overwhelming numbers manage to cover the coveted keg with hands.

This comprises the Freshman's formal initiation, but it is only the preface to his full, extra-curricular education. Until well into the second semester he receives solicitous attentions, from time to time, at the hands of the Sophmores, some of which courtesies he tries to return. This year the Freshmen lost out all along the line, including the Keg Rush. Their only hope now is to inflict the same stinging defeat on next year's incoming class.

Founders' Day Next to Commencement Day, Founders'

Day is the most important of the whole college year. From the parade of faculty and students down the asphaltum and out on the west campus, to the presentation of "The Shoemaker's Holiday," October 23rd, 1915, was filled with "happenings." As usual, there were in the procession this year classes (or nucleuses of classes) that will graduate in the dim future; some, twenty years from now. As some of the little "shavers" stumbled along, with "'30," "'34," and even "'36" on their arm-bands, it required a stretch of the imagination to pick out future half-backs and guards of the Swarthmore eleven; or, perhaps, future professors of Greek or Biology.

After each class had sung its song, and all, together, the Found-

Always he is unceremoniously dispersed, until he discovers that the guns aren't loaded, and that the whistles are "full of hot air." Then he shouts into office a class President, who now becomes the honored recipient of all Sophomore "call-downs" and impositions, and is periodically forced to lead his flock to the slaughter.

In the Wrestling Matches the Freshman is given a fairer chance, though his ers' Day Song, the great crowd moved to the amphitheatre to hear the addresses of Governor Brumbaugh, and Governor Miller of Delaware.

Swarthmore may well be proud of her Founders' Day speakers. In 1913, they were Congressman Palmer, Governor Tener, and President Wilson; in 1914, Dr. McDonald, President of the World Peace Foundation, and J. Allen Baker, Member of the English Parliament; while this year the Chief Executives of two states paid tribute "to the founders of old Swarthmore."

FOUNDERS' DAY—THE SENIORS

The Lay of The Last Rooter Or the Barn That Didn't Burn

The men and maids of Swarthmore
Had vowed with one accord,
Their little Quaker college
Should humble Haverford;
With one accord they vowed it
And named a meeting day,
And called the old alumni forth
From east and west and south and north.

East and west and south and north
The thrilling word was passed,
And in the camp of Swarthmore
Excitement mounted fast.
Shame on the lazy rooter
Who lingered in his hall,
While scrub plowed into 'Varsity
And fought hard for the ball.

Alas! there was no study
In Wharton Old or New,
Or Parrish, or the class rooms,—
We'd other things to do.
Small time we gave to Euclid,
Shakespeare and Henry James,
Those last few weeks before we played
This greatest of all games.

For we had heard a rumor
(From Haverford it came),
Of what they had in mind to do
To celebrate the game.
“When we have beaten Swarthmore,”
So ran the rumor dire,
“We'll take a certain aged barn
And set the thing on fire.”

I wis in all the college
There was no heart so cold,
But high it leapt and fast it beat
When that wild news was told.
Up rose the brave eleven,
Up rose the students all,
And swore the barn of Haverford
Should never, never fall.

'Twas Bedlam in the dining room:
The old war songs were sung,
And tables thumped and cowbells rung
To save that barn from doom.
We held a great mass meeting:
Up sprang an old “alum,”
And this the burden of his speech—
“It must not burn, by gum!”

And noisy and more noisy
Next day on Whittier Field,
We watched our brave eleven
Force Haverford to yield.
Up rose a shout of triumph
When last the whistle blew;
The college bell began to ring
The score of seven to two.

That evening at the festive board
We dined like queens and kings,
The while we sang, and cheered, and blew
On whistles, horns, and other things.
We pounded on the tables,
We stamped upon the floor;
There ne'er was such Thanksgivingness
In Swarthmore halls before.

Of course we had our speeches;
'Twas "Prexy" who began;
He praised the team of Haverford,
He praised the race they ran;
And then came Doctor Miller,
And Doctor Bronk "ensuite,"
Who spoke of Murch's little foot
And his tremendous feat.

We heard from Doctor Palmer,
And Doctor Mercer then,
Denworth, and Anna Michener,
The Senior football men;
Ed Tomlinson, and Gowdy;
And (though he couldn't play)
We cheered for Ally Cornog,
Who helped us win the day.

That night we had a bonfire
Upon the battlefield,
And round and round the towering flame
An ancient cart was wheeled;
And one by one the heroes
About the fire were whirled,
The while we stood and watched the flame
That flashed and leaped and curled.

We finished with our college dance,
Fit ending for the day;
And everyone was happy,
And everyone was gay,
And everyone was husky,
And everyone was hoarse;
We'd spent our voices at the game,
But didn't mind, of course.

And when our children come here,
And when they play the game,
And meet the sons of Haverford,
And serve them just the same,
Amid their celebrations
Still will the tale be told,
How valiant Swarthmore saved the barn
In those brave days of old.

“DER TAG”

days. Christmas dinner at Swarthmore is an oasis of abundance in a desert of famine—the one day of the year when everyone sings a song of gladness about a college meal.

In the center of every table a diminutive Christmas tree smiled out from behind its bright ornaments. When the seven o'clock "limit of decorum" had expired, gay-colored streamers began to dart through the air. Some landed in the chandeliers, some in the waitresses' hair; while others tangled themselves in the pine needles of the trees, and soon all the tables were chained together by a net-work of colored bands. Swarthmore College was just a big family of happy, care-free students. The steady chatter was punctuated now and then by the squawk of horns, and occasional "explosions" when someone got an especially appropriate Christmas present.

Of course, after such merriment, everyone was prepared to enjoy the Christmas Dance in the gymnasium. And everyone went home with the feeling that, after all, the cloud of academic grinding is not without its silver lining.

Spring It has been said that the Swarthmore campus is prettiest at that particular season when the observer is viewing it; whether in the fall, when everything is clothed in autumn's soft brown; or in the cold of winter, after a heavy snowfall; or, again, in the spring, when the fresh green lawns draw the student irresistibly from dormitory and "grinding" to play and revelry.

Each season has its own charm, but there is no doubt that Swarthmore undergraduates swear allegiance to one above all others—spring.

The Twilight Hour Then it is that the proverbial young man's fancy is given a chance. He dons white flannels, and after dinner, until it gets too hazy for the Dean to see distinctly, he strolls about a limited portion of the campus with a young lady at his side. It is a pretty scene—groups of students strolling about, while on the steps of the asphaltum, if it is Sunday evening, the Seniors are singing the old Swarthmore songs.

Christmas Dinner When a heavy body is set in motion and encounters no effective resistance, it moves for a considerable period of time before coming to rest again. Just before the Haverford game, the Swarthmore student body had attained such an enthusiastic momentum that even the Engineering Department could not compute it. The score of that game added a last, mighty impulse, and for almost a month the startled walls of Parrish looked down on a scene not unlike a session of our national House of Representatives.

In such an atmosphere was held the last dinner on the campus just before the Christmas holida-

FOOTBALL SPIRIT

Many a young man, as the day fades, has wished himself endowed with Joshua's power to make the sun stand still for an hour or so; for all too quick

The twilight bell rings out the parting day,
And slowly o'er the tree-tops creeps the moon;
The fusers homeward wend their listless way,
And leave the world to Darkness, come too soon.

THE SPRING CAMPUS

"To-morrow'll be of all the year the gladdest, merriest day,
For I'm to be Queen of the May, mother, I'm to be Queen of the May."

May Day Rising bells are superfluous on May Day. Before six o'clock the whole of Parrish and most of Wharton is deserted, while on the campus is assembled the student body, awaiting the opening of the exercises always attendant upon the coming of May—ceremonies in which the girls figure as performers, the boys only as spectators.

Last year the arrival of the May Queen was announced by a scarlet-cloaked herald mounted on a white charger. Following the procession of the classes, Jessica Granville-Smith made her queenly appearance, surrounded by a band of fairy sprites. The Rose Garden and West Campus made a charming setting for her coronation, the fascinating dance of the flower maids, and the Maypole dances by the girls of the different classes.

The exercises were closed by the time-honored custom of gathering about the "Dean's Steps," where the Seniors delegated their powers, responsibilities, worries—and privileges—to the Juniors, and each class advanced a step toward graduation. Once more they sang "Balm o' Gilead," and the class songs, and then everyone was off to breakfast, singing "Alma Mater."

CORONATION OF THE MAY QUEEN

Commencement Week

Undergraduates approach Commencement Week with mingled emotions, according to the classes to which they belong. For the Seniors, it is the commencement of independence, unhampered by anxious course advisers, or the lash of an absence committee; no longer will their tasks be served up to them in text-books, with careful directions in the front. For the remaining classes, it is that blissful period of recuperation from the effects of final examinations. Everyone rejoices in the glad fact that there are no more classes, no more athletic practices, no more "activities" clamoring for attention. Then is one free to enjoy the various entertainments of Class Day, Alumni, and Commencement exercises, with their attendant plays, banquets, and dances.

MAY DAY—THE CLASS OF EIGHTEEN

MR. TAFT

Commencement Week, 1915, began Sunday morning, June 13th, when "Prexy" delivered his last preaching to the Class of '15. In the evening, Laurie Seaman planted the modest little Haverford ivy under the Seniors' memorial stone in the Sproul Observatory wall. From the point of view of the ivy, the weather was ideal, for everything was nice and soggy, but we doubt whether Margaret Milne, the class orator, relished competition with the elements for the attention of her audience, even though her subject was, "Not for Ourselves Alone."

Monday afternoon, the Seniors filed solemnly into the open-air amphitheatre, keeping step to the warblings of the Sophomores, who were fortunately concealed behind the platform. After "Art" Mann, the presenter, had wreaked vengeance on each and every member of the class, to the great glee of each and every other member, the Senior play, "A Mid-Summer Night's Dream," was presented.

PREXY, MRS. PREXY AND EX-PREXY

Tuesday, we held our sides as we watched the Alumni play baseball with the 'Varsity. Their intentions were excellent, but most of them carried too much excess baggage to run on schedule. After the game, just as "A Mid-Summer Night's Dream" was about to be repeated, a mid-summer thunderstorm broke loose, and the audience rushed for the ark of Parrish. For once, everyone went to Collection without required attendance!

It was a great day! In some ways the greatest Commencement Swarthmore has known. Not only were the biggest bunch of Seniors given their walking papers, but a "large" man was secured to discharge them. Mr. Taft's infectious chuckle and falsetto tones never failed to bring instant response from his hearers; and his address, "The Church, Civilization, and War," was appropriate both to the occasion and to the times.

Chautauqua With the close of the college year comes the Chautauqua season, that happy compromise between work and play, which partially fills the more than empty coffers, and supplies yarns for at least two weeks after college reopens. More than a hundred students serve in various capacities, ranging all the way from "actorene" to stake-driver and bill-poster. The casts of "Twelfth Night," and "The Man From Home," were made up almost entirely of students of the Public Speaking Department, while "German, the Wizard," was none other than the Editor of the HALCYON of Nineteen Seventeen.

We must not fail to say a word or two about a particularly important, though physically small, member of the Chautauqua family—"Taki" the cat. Taki had scarcely lost his kittenish propensities when he reported for duty to the tent crew at Sunbury. His services were immediately accepted by Captain Tangy, and thereafter Taki frequently made his appearance on the stage at critical moments during a lecture or entertainment, to the out-spoken ecstasy of the "kiddies" in the front rows. At the close of the professional season, Taki took up winter residence in Wharton, relieving the uniformity of Wharton life by occasional visits to Parrish. We are glad to announce that Taki has since found a permanent home in a good mousing district near here, and will undoubtedly spend the remainder of his existence in complete feline happiness.

ALUMNI ROOTERS

"TAKI" IN RETIREMENT

Behold the child, by Nature's kindly law,
Pleas'd with a rattle, tickled with a straw.

THE DRAMATIC SEASON of the past year was a decided success from every point of view. Swarthmore audiences were treated to everything from Shakespeare to Gilbert and Sullivan, and both classic and modern drama were ably handled by the college players.

Deprived of the joys of creating, the Class of Seventeen turned to standard light opera, and finally chose "Pinafore" as the most suitable piece for displaying the talents of its individual members. On the men's holiday (Somerville Day), "Quality Street" was presented by and to the women of the college. The open-air amphitheatre was the scene of the May Day play, produced under the direction of Miss Blanchard. And then in June, the Seniors left with us, as a last memory, that old favorite, "A Midsummer-Night's Dream." "The Shoemaker's Holiday," an Elizabethan play, presented in Elizabethan style, was the 1915 Founders' Day attraction. Finally, came the home concert of the Men's Musical Clubs, as the concluding number of the "theatrical" program of the "Halcyon year."

"PINAFORE"

Josephine

BING presented by the Class of 1917, "Pinafore" was, of course, the greatest Sophomore Show that Swarthmore has yet seen. Although somewhat disturbed by the discovery that we would not be permitted to exhibit our genius in an original play, the class rallied quickly and gave a production of "Pinafore" which the critics pronounced excellent.

Donald Spackman played the leading male role, while Hester Levis (who, alas! has since deserted us), was the blushing daughter of Captain Corcoran. Although their love-making at times lacked the ease and aptitude which are said to accompany the genuine article, they played and sang their difficult parts in a highly satisfactory manner. Frank Hartung (also now among the missing) gave an impersonation of Dick Deadeye that fairly took the house by storm. Betty Worth played Little Buttercup to perfection, while Everett Irwin as Sir Joseph was a perfect dear. Boyd Barnard was not in the cast, but as Musical Director of the production he played an important and time-consuming part in whipping the show into shape.

The fears of those who thought the music might prove too much for our amateurs were not realized. Every part was well played and sung, while the chorus did excellent work. The whole performance was a distinct credit to the class.

SOMERVILLE PLAYERS IN "QUALITY STREET"

"QUALITY STREET"

MR. BARRIE'S "Quality Street" was the play chosen by the girls for presentation on Somerville Day. Margaret Milne, Eleanor Neely, and Jessica Granville-Smith were again seen in major roles, and with the usual satisfactory results.

The large crowd of alumnae assembled for the day, witnessed the play and pronounced it a striking success. It is a play that has in it a number of humorous touches, and each one "got across" the footlights to the audience, and was thoroughly relished.

"A ROMANCE O' THE WOODS"

AS a supplement to the May Day Dances, a play was given by the girls in the outdoor theatre, about the middle of May. The play was a pantomime of dancing, and had just enough plot to hold the interest of the spectators. The amphitheatre was an admirably adapted background for the pretty dance romance.

Margaret Milne, "Bob" Roberts, Jessica Granville-Smith, Lillian Pile, Eleanor Neely, and Margaret McIntosh, did excellent work in the more important parts.

The dancers were trained by Miss Blanchard, and to her the college family is indebted for a charming hour with the airy creatures of the woods.

"A MID-SUMMER NIGHT'S DREAM"

THE out-door auditorium, with its setting of green leaves and blue sky, was an ideal spot for this fairy-tale comedy of Shakespeare. The play was produced with a proper mingling of music, comedy, and romance.

Tom McCabe, as Bottom, was delightful in the chief comedy role, and for a part of the time at least made a perfect ass of himself. Gilson Blake, Dorothy Powell, Ellen Miller, and all of the others, interpreted their parts in an entirely pleasing manner.

color and atmosphere to the setting of the play. The audience was treated, in every way possible, to a true Elizabethan presentation. The effect was novel and pleasing, though it made the understanding of the play a trifle difficult at times.

"The Shoemaker's Holiday" lived up to the standard set by previous Founders' Day plays.

"THE SHOEMAKER'S HOLIDAY"

"The Shoemaker's Holiday" was presented without intermissions—or almost without intermissions. The qualification is necessary because of the presence of Ralph Heacock. He flitted, skipped, and bowed in a most lady-like fashion, thus letting the audience know when a scene had ended. Homer Berry and Eleanor Neely, of Chautauqua fame, read their lines with the ease and poise of professionals.

The Elizabethan scenery (which means no scenery at all), and the nobles in the box, lent

"THE SHOEMAKER'S HOLIDAY"

Home Concert of the Musical Clubs

HOW incomplete would be the college year without the Home Concert! The Musical Clubs vie with the Soph Show, the Senior Class Play, and all other local productions for first place in the hearts of the college folk. This year the tickets were sold out long before the date, March 10th; and when the curtain rolled aside that night, the rows of neatly garbed warblers faced a house crowded to the doors. How the song birds did sing! Vocal gymnastics, close harmony—nothing seemed too difficult for them to attempt. Each number showed skillful rendition and artistic finish. And each time a new success was registered, Bert Brown, Leader of the combined aggregation, and Bill Shoemaker, Manager, swelled with pride at the results of their labor.

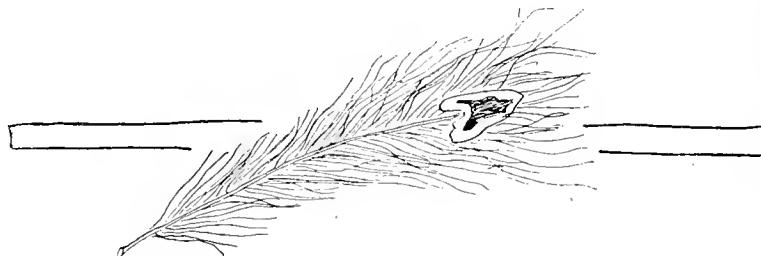

To let the Glee Club run off with all the honors of the evening was opposed to the principles of the Mandolin Club. With right merry will they set to work, and so well did they pick, bow, toot, and blow their respective instruments that they were able to evolve a wave of harmony that completely inundated the enraptured audience.

Then three of Nineteen Seventeen's stars, twinkling brightly, took the entertainment into their own hands. After Timmis and Brooke, a true Scotti-Caruso combination, had enchanted the audience with a melodious, mellifluous duet, Boyd Barnard, the boy wizard of the cornet, blew his way right into the hearts of the assembled enthusiasts. The college magician, Paul Gemmill, then carried Nineteen Seventeen's conquests further, completely mystifying everyone with a series of startling tricks.

The few minutes allotted to that dignified Senior, James B. Melick, were filled with the best of entertainment. From the moment Jim stepped out, with his pleasing personality and Melick reputation, he forced his sedate, conservative college audience to shriek with hysterical laughter over his clever characterizations, gyrations, and vocalizations. Many times he returned to bend himself, before the crowd would consent to let him go.

The late lamented Sophomore Show was then disentombed, dragged from its peaceful resting place, and screamingly burlesqued by "The Thrushes"—Brown, Burdsall, Melick, Pyle, Riffert, Berry, and Spackman. This gay group of vocalists and rag-pickers also put across some close harmony in a series of Hawaiian songs.

As a very fitting conclusion, the Glee Club led in the singing of Alma Mater, in which it must be confessed the audience, loath to see the conclusion of so enjoyable a concert, very reluctantly joined.

The Musical Clubs

THE four essentials that determine the tone, value, and success of a musical club may be summed up as follows: Real vocal and instrumental talent; a deep interest on the part of the members, and willingness to sacrifice time in regular attendance at rehearsals; a Director with patience, perseverance, and judgment in adapting the program to the available material; and an aggressive and capable manager, who realizes his responsibility as executive of the organization.

The season of 1915-16 shows clearly that the Swarthmore College Musical Clubs have not been lacking in any of these necessary elements. Carefully chosen men for the Glee and Mandolin Clubs attended the practices loyally, Brooke and Timmis perfected their duet, and Boyd Barnard selected a delightful number for his cornet solo. Paul Gemmill arranged twenty minutes of the newest and most fascinating magic. Jim Melick chose readings in which he was heard at his best. "The Thrushes"—Berry, Brown, Burdsall, Melick, Pyle, Riffert, and Spackman—worked up their number of Hawaiian songs. Director Brown trained and formed these numerous bits of entertainment into an evening's program, and Manager Shoemaker looked after the many details necessary to insure the finished concert.

The College may feel especially proud of the Musical Clubs, since throughout the season they were guided only by undergraduate hands. No faculty advisor or professional coach helped to make their success—and our Clubs now rank with the best musical organizations of colleges of comparable size. Perfect understanding between Bert Brown and Bill Shoemaker, and hearty co-operation on the part of the members, were apparent.

Walter Timmis, for three years a member of the Glee Club, and himself a musician of ability, will be Manager next year. No apprehension need be felt, for Timmis, as Assistant Manager, has shown his ability to handle the greater responsibilities of Managership. Already he has planned the schedule. Those interested in things musical at Swarthmore are looking forward to a season that will duplicate the successes of this year.

THE Joseph Leidy Scientific Society of Swarthmore College" was organized in 1880 as "The Scientific Society of Swarthmore College," and later, in March, 1895, was rechristened in honor of the famous scientist who was affiliated so long and so closely with the College.

The object of the Society is to keep abreast with the discoveries in the scientific world. The sciences included in the work of the Association are: Astronomy, Biology and Physiology, Chemistry, and Physics. The programs of the meetings include talks by professors, students, and men of prominence in the scientific world outside the College.

The residents of the borough of Swarthmore are eligible to membership, as well as students and officers of the College. The meetings are held on the third Thursday evening of each month during the College year.

The Joseph Leidy Scientific Society is the only organization of its kind in the College with an endowment. A liberal sum of money has been given by an alumnus to be used for the advancement of the Society.

Football Review

CAPTAIN MURCH

WITH a Haverford victory safely tucked away, no one would doubt that a Swarthmore team had passed through a successful season. Add to this the fact that the team won five out of the nine games scheduled, then ask, if you dare, whether we have just reason to be proud of Captain Murch's squad of pigskin chasers. For four games at the first part of the season Swarthmore fought without a single hostile foot being placed across her goal line. Dickinson tried to do it but was rolled back under an overwhelming defeat by the score of 42-0; Bucknell very nearly accomplished the feat in a close and hard-fought contest at Lewisburg, but Swarthmore's heavy line held her in safety, and in the meantime "Ally" Cornog's educated toe placed the oval between the uprights and the team came back with a 3-0 victory.

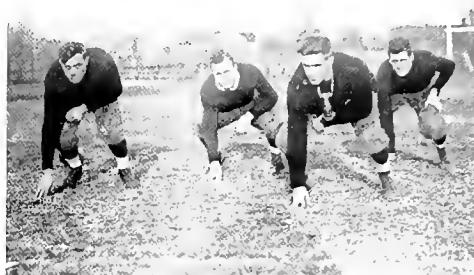

At Ursinus the following Saturday, the men played in dazed condition; so much so, in fact, that the Collegeville "husks" came so near that the Swarthmore rooters were getting very uneasy, to say the least. Time after time the backs would plunge through the line for big gains but each time the secondary defense would cut the men down before the damage had been completed. Defeated on land, Ursinus tried the air and two goals from the field were registered, these being the first scores made against the Garnet machine in 1915. The next week Franklin and Marshall "got the habit," and when Captain and quarterback Murch was removed from the game the team went to pieces and started to play as individuals. As a result came the first defeat of the season. And this with an audience of alumni and invited guests who thronged the field to do honor to the Founders of the college.

The next week came sweet revenge. Manager Gowdy took the team to Johns Hopkins and came home with the bacon after a hard and close game. Fullback Bush saved the day by breaking up a forward pass and running 80 yards for a touchdown in the last few seconds of play. Then came two sad defeats which nearly dragged the Garnet supporters into the deep pit of despair when they remembered the Haverford game was but two weeks away. Lafayette had developed a strong attack through a forward pass, which our men could not solve, and a 17-0 defeat was the penalty for not being prepared to meet the aerial invasion. But the team profited by the lesson given by Lafayette and got ready for Haverford's forwards. Villa Nova came to Whittier Field with a heavy line and a fast back-field. With two 'Varsity men out of our line-up they made short work of the Garnet team. By this time, however, the men were getting ready to show some real fight and they were due for the victory which was theirs when Haverford invaded our domain on the following Saturday, the 20th of November.

THE BACKFIELD

Coach Roper put the team through a great deal of secret practice during the week, and after they had imbibed a generous share of the spirit which was so abundant around college at that time, we found that a different team trotted out on the field before the 10,000 people and the blaring bands. The football team had come to "Der Tag" and they played like it.

The game itself was essentially different from that of last year. Instead of fighting for three periods to score in the fourth, the teams scored in the first period and then fought like madmen to prevent the other side from scoring again. And such a fight! No one who was there will ever forget the feeling when Swarthmore came from behind and with a beautifully executed forward pass from Captain Murch to Fullback Bush brought the ball within scoring distance of the goal and put Swarthmore ahead, 7-2. How the team did fight to hold that lead! We can pretty nearly see them now. Every man on the team played a wonderful game. McGovern was a demon on left end. Endicott tore the right side of Haverford's line into shreds. Donnelly, Murch and "Fenny" Baker achieved wonders in breaking up forward passes and this was really the reason for the victory. The Haverford team also played a wonderful game. They fought every minute with all that was in them. For having won a triumph over such a combination, Swarthmore feels justly proud of her 1915 eleven.

Basketball Review

CAPTAIN HARRY

wards scored a one-handed shot from the corner of the floor.

On the other hand, some of the team's victories were of the hardest variety. Penn had one of the best teams in her history and played an excellent game against Swarthmore. The final issue was in doubt until the last whistle had blown and Captain Harry's squad deserves a great deal of credit for winning over such an aggregation. The Penn State victory was one of the hardest fought and cleanest played games which has ever been staged on the Swarthmore floor.

"Tod" Eberle's 1916 team was composed of four men over six feet and Captain Harry whose "pep" put him in the class with these giants. With their weight the team also had speed and this gave them a great advantage over their opponents. Time and again the Garnet forwards would bounce the ball between them under the basket until it popped in. Another conspicuous quality of the team which distinctly formed a factor in its success was the ability and the desire to play together. As a result Swarthmore had a basketball representation composed of one team and not five individuals.

In the forward positions Donnelly and Sproul took good care of the firing line and Sproul also obtained an enviable record as a foul shooter. At centre Spackman proved to be the "find" of the season and became a prime factor in the team work. In the guard positions, McGovern as "back man," and Harry as the floor guard, kept the opposing forwards worrying about their shooting records all season. In the secondary line, Shoemaker, Alderfer or Munce, were ready at a moment's notice to give relief if it were needed. Of this squad, graduation will remove only Captain Harry and leave Coach Eberle with the 1917 aggregation as an nucleus for the team next year.

---

CAPTAIN OWINGS

team beat Stevens by the comfortable margin of 9-0. At this point the skids began to slide and Lehigh and the Navy administered severe setbacks in the following contests.

After defeating the Alumni "Varsity "has beens," Swarthmore lost a chance for the championship and a trip to the Panama-Pacific exhibition by allowing Hopkins to score six times to the Garnet's twice. Nothing daunted, the team came back the following Saturday and beat Penn for the second time in a close battle. The Indians paid their annual visit to Whittier Field and engaged in an aquatic meet with the ball featuring as a submarine. The native Americans proved to be the best swimmers and won by the score of 7-0. The final wind-up of the season took place on Whittier Field the following week when the rejuvenated team held the crack combination from Toronto to a score of 9-2. This was the last game for Captain Owings and finished one of the most brilliant lacrosse careers in the history of the sport at Swarthmore.

Lacrosse Review

THE lacrosse season of 1915 was one of ups and downs for the Garnet team. Under the leadership of Captain Owings, re-elected from the previous year, and LaLonde, one of Canada's foremost "Kid glove" artists, things looked exceptionally bright when the season started. Several new men were in the line-up, but with the help of Captain Owings and the other veterans, the team made a very creditable showing in the first game, defeating the University of Pennsylvania by the score of 2-0. The next week Manager Howell took the men to Hoboken where the team beat Stevens by the comfortable margin of 9-0. At this point the skids began to slide and Lehigh and the Navy administered severe setbacks in the following contests.

Baseball Review

CAPTAIN TWINING

He was ably seconded by Ames, who pitched several good games during the season. The infield combination would have given Connie Mack's celebrities a run for their money. Sproul on first, Cornog at second, White at short, and Boughton at third, made a combination hard to beat. In the outfield, Shoemaker, Brown and Riffert, the 1916 trio, made up a set of gardeners which it would be hard to duplicate in college ranks. Captain Twining was the only man to be lost by graduation and this left an exceptional nucleus of 'Varsity men around which to build the 1916 nine.

Track Review

SWARTHMORE'S track team of 1915 was largely centered around the work of three men. Captain Hunter, Captain-elect Gowdy and "Charlie" Blackwell were the three men whose exhibitions brought so many points to Swarthmore's credit. Blackwell, in the dashes; Gowdy, in the hurdles and the broad jump, and Captain "Pete" in the weight events, were accustomed to winning so many first places in the dual meets that they won and rewon their 'Varsity letters with an ease which made the less gifted men green with envy. To support these three men, Dr. Mercer, the coach, had developed a set of performers no one of whom was to be despised. Pohlig in the quarter, Carswell in the high jump, Zerega in the two-mile, and Smith and Olin in the pole vault, made up a team which could hardly be sneered at.

Small wonder then, that the track team of 1915 was defeated only once and that at the hands of the University of Pennsylvania non-letter men by a measly two points.

GOWDY IN THE INTERCOLLEGiates

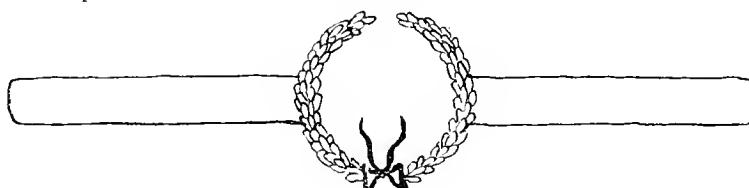

Prior to this the team had sent a relay quartet to the Penn Relays which had finished second in their class and had entered several men in the special competitions, none of whom qualified. New York University was beaten in a dual meet on Whittier Field, and Rutgers was tied at 56 points at New Brunswick. After this the team journeyed to Easton and defeated the track team, thus avenging the football and the baseball defeats. As a windup to the season, Haverford was defeated on Whittier Field in a meet which, in the last few events, took on the qualities of an aquatic contest.

In the course of the year's work three records were broken. Captain Hunter was forced to overstep his own mark in the discus in order to beat the N. Y. U. weight man. Zerega smashed the two-mile record beyond recognition at Franklin Field, while Olin pole vaulted higher than any Freshman had ever done in the meet with Rutgers. A series of unfortunate accidents befell the team before the Middle States Intercollegiate Championships, otherwise the Garnet might have led the colleges in this vicinity instead of resting in fourth place.

Soccer

SOCCER, although not officially recognized as a minor sport by the Athletic Council, continued to develop during the past season which was the second of its existence. Organized in the fall of 1914, the Garnet Soccer Club, as the team was called, played and lost two games. This season the work in this department was better organized and the team played a schedule of three games in addition to several practice contests. The teams played were all out of Swarthmore's class, but the small scores run up against the Garnet team shows that Swarthmore is capable of developing a team in this sport which will do her credit.

Swimming

JUDGING by the results of the schedule, the swimming season of 1916 could hardly be called a brilliant success. However there were many features about the team's work to please those interested in their progress. Every member of the squad showed the results of the season's training and made a better performance in the last meet than in the first one. The meet at Rutgers was particularly close, Swarthmore winning four first places. Likewise, the Haverford meet was very closely contested. In this sport above all others Swarthmore fans would be justified in that "Wait till next year" spirit.

Cross Country

IN addition to the annual cross country race between the Freshmen and the Sophomores, Swarthmore took part in three intercollegiate contests during the past season. Two of these resulted in victories for the Garnet. The Penn scrub team and the Lafayette runners were among the victims while Swarthmore was forced to bow before the squad of the Penn Fresh. The work of the Freshman trio, Pierce, Baker and E. Smith was particularly worthy of comment.

INTERCLASS CONTESTS

Phoenix Cup Sports

The Phoenix Cup Sports are held each year on Whittier Field. The prize is a cup, presented for the purpose by "The Phoenix," the College news sheet. All four classes enter the contest; anyone is eligible who has not scored a point in a regularly scheduled Varsity Meet. The winning class is allowed to place its numerals upon the cup, and keep it until the following year.

Interclass Basketball Series

Immediately after the football season closes and prior to the opening of the 'Varsity basketball season a series of interclass contests is staged in the "Gym." All the candidates for 'Varsity berths are given an opportunity to play on their own class teams and in this way the coaching staff is able to get a line on the available material.

Sophomore-Freshman Contests

Cross-Country Run The annual contest between the Freshman and Sophomore classes was held in 1914 on November 23. It was the first race to be run over the new cross-country course. Granniss Bonner of the Sophomore class, won the race after a gruelling finish up the campus. His time was 21 minutes and 44 seconds which set a new record for the course. Although the class of 1917 produced the winner, 1918 secured a higher team score by placing more men in the list of scorers.

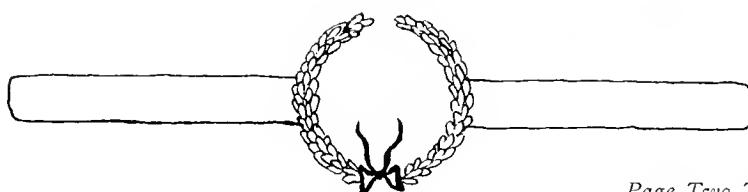

The men finished in the following order: Bonner, Maule, Thornton, '18; Leslie, '17; Hayes, '18; Bodine, '18; Shrode, '17; Wright, '18; Pratt, '18; Lang, '17; Willets, '17; Clement, '18.

Football Game With the Haverford game played at Walton Field, the big football classic of 1914 was the contest between 1917 and 1918 classes which was staged on Whittier Field on Thursday afternoon, December 3. For four long periods the athletes struggled against the effects of King Nicotine and last, but not least, the terrific onslaughts of the opposing backfield. In that time the Freshmen were able to accumulate two touchdowns and the Sophs had accomplished the same. The only difference and the one which resulted in the victory was that the Sophs kicked both of their goals, whereas the Freshmen slipped up on one of their trials. Forward passing a la Gieg was responsible for the scores of both teams.

Swimming Meet The third and last of the annual contests between the underclasses was staged in the swimming pool on Thursday afternoon, December 10, 1914. It was closely contested throughout and the Sophs were only able to win finally by the small margin of 30-24. For the Sophomores Spackman, Leslie, Gibson and Bew did the best work while the Freshmen who were particularly conspicuous, were Donnelly, Marr and Wilson.

GRADUATE MANAGER, SAMUEL C. PALMER

There may be those who are not familiar with the term "Graduate Manager." If there be such, let them remove their ignorance by asking some one from Swarthmore. To us the term "Graduate Manager" is synonymous with efficiency in management and a larger bank balance in the Treasury. We blame the bigger bank balances on him because they never happened before and because they have been ever welcome guests since Dr. Palmer took charge of the task of co-relating and supervising Swarthmore athletics. The managers of the various teams are the most familiar with the efficiency of which we speak. Every expense of each athletic team is now recorded and registered for future reference. In this way the college has been able to stop any leakages from the Treasury of the Athletic Association which were caused by the inexperience of the undergraduate managers. With all of this, Dr. Palmer finds time for a little bit of sport. A graduate and former athlete of Swarthmore, he takes a great deal of pleasure in being around the athletes while they are training and it is even rumored that he has been known to participate in the practice.

PHYSICAL DIRECTOR, E. LE ROY MERCER, M.D.

If you do not know who this youth is, look in the alumni register of George School, and if you do not find his name there, go down to Pennsylvania and look either in the School of Medicine or in the Hall of Fame of Red and Blue athletes. And if you do not find him there, or among the list of Olympic heroes, come down to Swarthmore, and if you have anything wrong with you any time of the day, go over to the doctor's office and there you will find this youth. The only difference is that he has laid aside the pole with which he captured the interscholastic pole vault championship and in its place you will find a medicine case and a roll of bandages. That is Roy Mercer as we know him. He may have a splendid athletic career, but he never rubs it in on the lesser lights in the athletic line. Instead, we have a considerate and helpful Physical Director, Physician, Track Coach and Football Trainer all in one. The excellent condition of the football team and the enviable record of the 1915 track team are a tribute to Doctor Mercer.

CHEER LEADER TOMLINSON

When a crowd yells it needs a leader. That is, when a college crowd wishes to bawl forth encouragement to its team on the field. It could yell all of its own accord, of course, but a herd of wild horses never accomplishes anything really worth while. Just so would a college crowd do little good at a game without someone to decide when and what to yell. But better no cheer leader than a poor one. "By their works shall ye know them," and on this basis we arrive at the conclusion that Ed's cheer leading has been a big factor in the success of the college teams during the two years in which he has had charge of the yelling. Some of the Princeton gymnasts may be able to produce more syncopations in their motions, but when it comes to getting a crowd out on Whittier Field yelling to beat the band why then "Here's hats off to Tommy."

SONG LEADER BROWN

When a crowd is happy it wants to sing. When our team has beaten Haverford or when the rooters are waiting to see it beat Haverford, it is only natural that they should want to sing. And sing they will. Only for the good of those connected with the singing it is well that someone who knows how should lead in the effort, and so we just naturally come to Bert. Who in college knows more about music than he? And who could lead the music as well as he with his long experience as the Glee Club conductor? No, sir, without any doubt, Bert is the right man in the right job. It is he who was responsible with Ed Tomlinson for the enthusiasm which was such a big factor in beating Haverford last fall. Not to mention the songs he wrote for the occasion. Swarthmore will indeed miss Bert when he leaves and takes with him that fountain of musical entertainment.

THE SCRUBS' "HAVERFORD GAME"

The Scrub

Why is a football team? It manifestly takes something more than just eleven men to "put the thing across." Yes, it requires about twenty-two men to make a football team, and the last eleven are never heard of in public. They are called "scrubs." Sounds rotten, doesn't it? Yet they are the living examples of that vague generalization which we laud under the name of college spirit. If it isn't college spirit, then it surely is something else worth while which sends a man out on the field day after day to be hammered around by the larger and heavier men of the 'Varsity. The coach has no sympathy whatever for the scrubs. Whenever the tackling dummy fails to work, call a scrub! Whenever the 'Varsity team needs to be shaken up, call on the scrub—and he is always there ready to be called on. At all times he is ready to be the doormat over which the first team walks to glory.

Do we have any scrubs around Swarthmore? And if so, why don't we hear more of them? Ah, there is the "rub" of scrub life. The brighter lights on the 'Varsity are constantly being flashed abroad by pictures and glowing newspaper reports which they have to live up to, but no one ever hears of the scrubs. When the team comes out on the field before the blaring band and the big crowd, he sits quietly in the stands and watches. The work of all scrub men is either before or after the real show. They see the 'Varsity commit blunders, and that gives them a ray of hope and sends them back to another week's grind. Yet here at Swarthmore we have one of the best scrubbing machines. Led on by Captain Bartleson, who served four years with the broom, when he knew all the while that his size (or lack of it) would never give him a chance for the 'Varsity. And there are others too numerous to mention. All one sees of a scrub is when a 'Varsity back breaks loose for a run. Suddenly from somewhere, he is met by a combination of Garnet and moleskin and the two roll over together and the ball stops. The scrub has done his work.

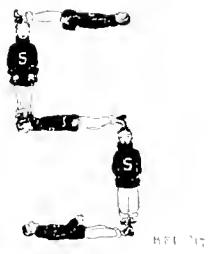

How the fellows did fight for the team before the Haverford game! With Delaplaine at their head, who put the "old pep" in the line-up, the reserves (let us speak in terms of respect) rolled the 'Varsity around into realizing the "Swarthmore spirit" which was back of them. An electric light shines through resistance. So it is with a 'Varsity team. They cannot be much stronger than the scrubs that give them daily practice. What could we do without them? Here's a toast to one of the biggest men in the college—the poor old 'Varsity scrub.

The President's Message

(Editor's Note: For ages past, it has been the custom to ask the President to write a message for THE HALCYON. We of the present staff have no desire to depart from this cherished tradition. But when we called on the President to make known our request, we discovered that he had gone a-golfing. Rather than disappoint our readers, we determined that we ourselves would write the message. Armed with a stack of old HALCYONS and a self-spelling Underwood typewriter, we hasten to greet the Class of Twenty.)

I, Joseph Swain, President of Swarthmore College, am a man of few words, but I appreciate the courtesy of THE HALCYON in asking me to say something to the students who come to Swarthmore for the first time. For you I have the following message:

Warning Against the Dean You are to be interned, or rather confined, here in Swarthmore for a term which averages slightly more than four years. In a few days after your arrival, your troubles will begin, and the Dean will attempt to make a speech of welcome for your benefit. He is a man of good intentions, but words come hard with him; so let me explain, and at the same time warn you against the content of his little talk. He will probably tell you that if you don't keep up in your work it will be his duty first to notify your parents, and then, if necessary, to forcibly eject you from these classic halls. Don't let this worry you. It is all a bluff. We need your money, and that fact will enable you to stick around for quite a while even if you are nothing but an ornament.

Allowances The thing you are sent here for is a liberal education. Now, the first essential of a liberal education is a liberal allowance. Strike your dad at once, and have this little matter settled and off your mind. Students have been known in the past to survive on $20.00 a week.

Be Independent The second essential of college life is independence. I cannot emphasize this point too strongly. Do not get into the habit of thinking that just because a man is older than you are, he is better. Don't let upperclassmen or rules influence your life. If you want to smoke cigarettes in Parrish, by all means light up; and if you have a little spare time, come down and look out of the window in my office.

Use of the Library

The third thing of which I wish to speak is one about which there has been a great deal of misunderstanding. I refer to study. In the stories you have read of college life (by, perhaps, Owen Johnson or Arthur Stanwood Pier), there was no mention of study. This is the proper attitude to take. Books are all right in their place, but their place is in the Library. Never take them from their environment.

Regarding a Schedule

To get the most out of college life, a student must be efficient and have a definite program. The following is submitted as the ideal schedule, and one that worked wonders in my own particular case:

Ten hours for sleep.
Two hours for meals.
Two hours for recreation.
Three hours for fussing.
Two hours for outside work.

This leaves a balance of one hour, which can be used for study, provided it happens to be near the end of the semester. This item should be kept as low as possible. Everything will be done to aid the students in this line.

The "Cut" System

There are a few things at Swarthmore that do not amount to much. Let me warn you against them from the start. First, there is the "experimental" cut system established by one of our professors. This system allows one to absent himself on the slightest pretext. The main idea is to get statistics as to how many classes a man can skip and still pass the course. From time to time a Committee will meet with students and discuss topics of mutual interest. The dates of these meetings will be announced, and you will be expected to attend, if convenient. The only annoyance the system will cause you is an occasional trip to the Dean's Office, where you will be given an opportunity to put your noblest thoughts on paper. This practice is heartily endorsed by the English Department, because it stimulates the imagination. While in the Dean's Office, do not fail to talk to his Secretary; she will enjoy it, and you may learn something.

Fraternities

My second warning is in regard to fraternities. These organizations may be roughly divided into two classes—snobs and rough-necks. Their main object, in either case, is to hold dances, and keep scholarship as low as possible. Some would advise you to look these bunches over carefully, but this would entail a useless expenditure of energy. My advice is to count them out on the fingers of your left hand, thus: "My mother told me to take this one." One reason for having five fraternities in Swarthmore is to facilitate this method of selection. Before closing this topic, I should like to put in a good word for Phi Beta Kappa. Much has been said against this noble band, but last year, at least, its social events were the big Noyes of the season. If I were you, on my next trip to town, I should stop at a pawnshop, and buy the regulation key.

Other Societies

In your visits to Swarthmore, you may have noticed, on the northern border of the campus, a little brown stone building. To members this is known as "the temple," but all others refer to it as "the little stone jug." Seven men meet here every Thursday night and hold weekly smokers. They can all be identified by the brass pins worn on their vests. The next time you get a slant on one of these, go and slap the wearer on the back and ask him how the organization is getting along. Ask to be remembered to the crowd, and put in your application for membership. Of course, it may not do much good, for these fellows all have relatives and friends whom they want to take in, but it is always best to show that you are interested, in case there should be a death in the family.

The Fraternity Guide

(Abridged)

In the early fall this chapter holds daily meetings on Whittier Field. Like a meteor they rise and splurge across the sky until Thanksgiving. Then, however, they begin to wane, and gradually vanish in the mid-semester examinations. As wild summer roses, they flourish in the open, but wither and decay when confined in the four walls of a class room. Corson is an example of a man getting into the wrong bunch; he should have held out for Phi Beta Kappa.

The roll of this corporation offers an interesting study in means and extremes. It's a long, long way from Tubby Taylor to Hugh Denworth. Meetings are held weekly, but the Committee on Ways and Means is in continuous session.

Where are their rooms? Right down the hall next to the Boys' Parlor. You'll see it labeled "Phoenix." A quorum is always present. Their chief basis for selection of members is loquacity, and in order to discover the eligibles they offer Extemporaneous Speaking prizes; and also hold post-meeting talk fests, to which the public is invited. Occasionally, however, they slip up, and let in men who fail to qualify from the standpoint of verbosity. How, otherwise, would Ed and Bill Tomlinson have gotten in?

You can't accuse this bunch of lacking "harmony in the chapter," for, in addition to cornering most of the warblers and ivory-ticklers about college, they maintain a private glee club. When you attend a college dance at which the musical numbers are as "far between" as fruit for breakfast, and as varied as Saturday hash, you can be sure that there is a Pesky dance or banquet on somewhere.

This is a highly individualistic fraternity. If you don't believe this statement, hear Stephens laugh, or Timmis putting his voice through scrimmage, or watch Bailey dance. Another highly epistemological individual is Paremenus. At first they objected to taking him in, on account of his name, but his logic was irresistible. All the O A T's are agreeable "fellers." Why, once in his Freshman year, Baldy Stratton in a biographical sketch described himself as being of a thoughtful and congenital disposition.

Sir Joseph and the Great Fight

The story is told of the great days of yore
How Joseph the Swain, ranging six feet and four,
Marched out with his company of warriors so bold
To battle with Freshmen, whose feet were quite cold.
Close by on his right hand strove Miller the Brave,
Who slew with his telescope many a knave,
While Alleman mighty, with fire in his breath,
And brazen experiments, smote them with death.
The lectures of Hull were aimed true and straight,
But, joy for the Freshman! they bounced off his pate;
And Gorham and Griffin, with pencil and pen,
Took notes of the conflict, "The weakness of men."
The battle was raging through class room and hall,
When forth stepped Knight Trumbauer, with blond hair and all;
He hurled forth his English, but who heard him speak?
For Dennison's war-cry, "Arise! Greek meets Greek!"
Resounded through Parrish and out in the night,
Till Hayes with his motley crew joined in the fight.
The odds were quite even when Trotter and Dave
Came down from the Lab, their brave allies to save,
While Engineer Blessing, with hand on the throttle,
Defended Miss Coale, who wielded a bottle.
The Freshmen were fighting like knights of the past,
And onslaughts and charges came in thick and fast,
Till a blow from a basketball, aimed true and straight,
Sent Joseph the Swain up—or down—to his fate.
The outlook was dismal, alas! what a pity!
When forth stepped Sir Brooks, with his Absence Committee;
He fussed and he fumed, with his mouth full of yarn
From chewing the rag, but who cared a darn!
Ah! Before his fine army quite boldly he struts,
And gives to each Freshman eight unexcused cuts.
The Freshmen were brave, but the Pace was too fast,
The Absence Committee had licked them at last.
Thus history tells of the good days of yore,
When Brooks and his Cut System saved old Swarthmore.

"FLYING SQUADRON" VISITS HIGH SCHOOL AT PALMER'S CORNERS

A long round of cheers for Swarthmore filled the spacious auditorium of the Palmer's Corners High School, when Mr. J. Sebring Riffert, a member of the Swarthmore College "Flying Squadron," rose to speak on the subject, "Athletics, and What We Play in College Life."

Mr. Riffert, before settling down to the serious side of his question, gave a little song from "The Foolishness of 1916." The blending of his exceptionally melodious voice was terrific. Getting down to the more weighty aspect of his subject, Mr. Riffert outlined college activities, from the athletic side, in a very capable manner. Starting with casino, he gave the student government rules for every Swarthmore game, up to and including seven-up. Throughout the whole talk the students took frantic notes, and when Swarthmore's representative sat down he was applauded to the echo.

The next speaker was Mr. Paremenus Shrode, whose talk was necessarily short, because the speaker had to make the long journey back to college in time to insure that the members of the Debate Team did not break training. His subject was, "Some Men Are Born Great, Some Achieve Greatness, While I Come From Indiana." He managed to work in a few statistics from the World's Almanac, as well as several touching passages from "Uncle Tom's Cabin." Mr. Shrode was allowed to depart unmolested.

Mr. P. Fleming Gemmill was then introduced, and he proceeded to get on the right side of the audience by presenting each person with a silver dollar, which he plucked from the air. Mr. Gemmill said: "The chief purpose of a college education is to educate: e duco—meaning to lead out (Classical publications please copy). Now, before we can lead out, we must lead in. (Applause). What, then, can we lead in? That is the question. What can we lead in? Knowledge—that is the answer. Study, study, study—that is the method. The man who studies is sure to get the most out of life. Away with frivolities! Let football bury its dead, but as for me, Give me Phi Beta, or give me death." The speaker had worked himself into a frenzy of oratory, and had to be forcibly ejected.

The next speaker was Miss Ruth Stephenson, who chose as her subject, "Fussing: Its Cause and Cure." She said in part: "Most trouble given to the Women's Student Government along this line is caused by the men. The practice of standing round in the halls after dinner is most objectionable, and must be stopped. What if some of the alumni should come back and see a couple standing here, another over there, and so on down the corridor! How would they get to the Soup's Office? Again, how could Dave Miller and Miss Lukens get their work all done? 'To fuss or not to fuss' is a vital question to every college man and woman. It is a question that threatens to shake the very foundations of the world. Fussing must be stopped!"

After this eloquent speech, the Swarthmore delegation walked out, with Miss Stephenson in the lead, while the student body arose and sang twelve verses of "Shall We Meet Beyond the Crum?"

LAURANCE P. GOWDY GIVES ANNUAL RECITAL

Rendering a difficult program with marvelous adeptness, Laurance Peters Gowdy, of the Class of Sixteen, gave his Annual Recital before a small but appreciative audience last Thursday night in Collection Hall. Several airs from grand opera were enthusiastically received, and the performer's superb presence went far toward making the evening a success. Ten cents admission was charged, and the proceeds, seventy-two cents, were turned over to the Alumni Field Fund. The seeming discrepancy in the receipts is due to the fact that Mr. Gowdy, being the performer, was allowed in the hall for slightly less than the regular admission price. The program follows:

1. Toussaint from "L'Ouverture" - - - - - Arr. by Gowdy
2. (a) Harp! Harp! Mighty Souls - - - - - Arr. by Gowdy
(b) I've Got a Tomotter - - - - - From the Soph Show
3. But Nellie Only Cried the Louder - - - - - (In French)
4. Casting Bread Upon the Waters—(Sea-sick Song from H. M. S. Pinafore)
5. I've Got a Little Lisp - - - - - (Written for Mr. Gowdy by H. L. B.)

SUNDAY NIGHT SINGING

The Sunday Night Singing of the olden days is a thing of the past. The students no longer attend Singing for the spiritual solace of the hymns alone, but for the social solace of the hims and hers.

We realize that this criticism is useless without some positive suggestion. As it has so often and so willingly done in the past, The Phoenix stands ready to offer a constructive plan for the Student Government Associations to work upon. We would suggest that these Associations:

- (1) Prohibit the occupation of contiguous territory by men and women.
- (2) Make non-attendance at Sunday Night Singing a direct violation of the Honor System.
- (3) Appoint a Committee of three, to be known as the Sunday Night Singing Songsters, to lead the chorus and to enforce articles (1) and (2).

Undoubtedly there are many talented students in college who could do this line of work, but The Phoenix recommends as best fitted, Ellsworth Curtin, Lesley Eby, and Lawrence Pyle.

The honor attached to membership on the Songsters' Committee would call forth great competition, but a system of Sophomore try-outs, similar to those used for athletic managements and Phoenix positions, could easily be worked out, and Sunday Night Singing would in time become a genuine student activity.

J. C. L., '17.

MEN'S EATING CLUBS MEET

At a joint meeting of the Ten Hungry Devils and Ye Monks of Ye Black Cowl, held in Media last Friday night, seven Freshmen were initiated into both organizations. All the new members enjoyed the experience immensely; Ed Bush is quoted as having had a particularly striking time.

A literary program was presented, the poetry of Bacon and Lamb being given special consideration. In the discussion which followed, Pat McGovern spoke on the cultural value of eating clubs, and Dick Burdsall urged closer contact between the Monks and Devils. At a late hour, tea was served by Everett Irwin.

DR. HULL DEBATES MR. ROOSEVELT

During the early part of last week, Doctor Hull, representing the Navy League, engaged in a heated debate with Theodore Roosevelt on the question of "Preparedness." Doctor Hull drew upon history with a lavish hand, citing example after example from the past to show that the evolution of nations was a question of the survival of the strongest, and that nations without armaments have invariably met with disaster.

Mr. Roosevelt opened his argument with a prayer that President Wilson might continue to be strong and keep this nation in the blessed paths of peace. He argued that treaties and good will had always been a sufficient protection for unprepared nations; that Belgium deserved her punishment, because she offered resistance to the Germans; that force was always and unalterably wrong, and the argument of brute strength was and would ever be unavailing against a nation like the United States, armored in the panoply of love.

In closing the debate, Doctor Hull decried as willy-nillies and poltroons the men who were "too proud to fight." "America has never been prepared," he shouted, "and this fact led to the untimely death of 'The Father of His Country.'" (Doctor Hull here undoubtedly refers to Mr. George Washington). "After the present European war, the victor will turn his bloody attention to us, and the conflict will be awful." (Doctor Hull admits that he used this word in want of a better). "Gentlemen, in view of this coming disaster, I offer you the toast: 'Our country! Right or wrong, our country!'"

Plaint of the Would-Be Bookie

"Let me live in a house by the side of the road."

What makes a Bookie? How, Freshman, can I,
Who ne'er have passed that sacred portal, hope
To tell thee what has wrung sad hearts for years?
Can I, who am profane, tell what I would,
But know not? Yet this much, alas! I know,
That I am not a leader in my class—
That I am not among the blessed seven
Who know the secrets of our Swarthmore heaven.

To-day I know that, when I knew it not,
They weighed me in that balance which by few
Is seen, and seen is ne'er described. They found
That I, with puny mind and body weak,
Could not be trusted with sacred things
All Bookies know,—but knowing ne'er repeat.
Ah! Fresh, to that great end thy thought incline;
Beware the awful fate that now is mine!

I stand before thee here, a hopeless wreck,—
A failure,—bankrupt in the marks of life;
I stand alone—forgot—outside the pale
My classmates entered. I, alas! am left
To drain the stein of bitterness. In shame
I hang my head; by all my name is scorned.
I'm down and out: My vest is unadorned!

To Underclassmen

To him who in the love of ego holds
Communion with her boastful forms, she speaks
A various language; for his gayer hours
She has a voice of flattery: a smile,
And whispering to self of wondrous deeds
Done in the past—when all around have failed,
And, with a craven spirit, stole away,
And left the field to thee alone. When thoughts
Of bitter hours come like a withering blight
Across thy mind,—and direful images
Of worth unmarked, of glories yet unsung,
Of times of darkness, when to Freshmen bold
Thy nameless form inspires not awe; and caps
That should be raised remain untouched upon
The heads of them that do not know nor care,
When, with their parents, visiting their sons
(Grown manly over night), they pass on by
Thy skulking form, and, with unseeing eye,
No tale of wonder do impart of thee—

*       *       *

So live, that when thy write-up goes to press
The page that shows thy face in HALCYON,
By which each one is judged, and where he takes
His half sheet in the record book of time,—
It goes not a sarcastic, scornful thing,
Too full of sting to sound a word of praise.
But may thy glories fill the school with joy,
And thou at last receive thy rightful due;
So, Freshmen, following thee in after years,
Shall copy thee, and reap the great reward.

APRIL

Tu. 6. "Back to the army again"—College starts; also that two-minute Social Hour.

Wed. 7. "Worms" appear at breakfast. "Solomon in all his glory" isn't in it. Dark green pills dot landscape around the Libe.

Th. 8. Miss Lukens springs her new spring hat. Toad electrifies Library; "Now, stop, you nasty boy!"

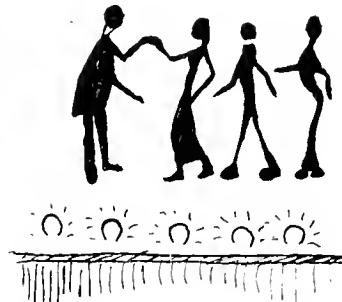

Fri. 9. We beat Penn in first Lacrosse game, 2-0. Brooks speaks in Collection on "Cramps." The shipyard? Oh, no!

Sat. 10. DUMMERVILLE SAY: usual female invasion. Boys quickstep for the tall timbers (i. e., Men's Gym.) "Quality Street" a big success. Baseball game also. Penn's hoodoo continues: S-11, P-6.

Sun. 11. Rain. Much after-dinner wailing on the Pet. Dr. Phillips speaks in joint meeting of the Y's (M. and W.) on "Have you a little shadow in your home?"

Mon. 12. Phi Beta Kappa's announced. Four boys! Vive the masculine sex!

Tu. 13. College presses John Wanamaker's hand to pulp. Girls sport sweet peas by the bushel.

Wed. 14. Free-for-all scrap in Men's Student Government. Cheers for "Stag;" but we finally agree to be hen-pecked and "co-operate" in the new table system for three weeks.

Th. 15. Crim. Class invades the Poor House. Insects a specialty.

Fri. 16. Signs of Spring. Baseball and Lacrosse chew up the front campus.

Sat. 17. Prexy interviews leaders of the Army of Invasion of Parrish. Result: "Thee must never do it again."

Sun. 18. Table lists posted. "Say, can you beat it?"

Florrie and George
Winnie and Pat }
Betty and Ned } All at the same table!

And yet they say there is no graft in this College!

Mon. 19. Recipe for Chaos. Ingredients:
400 college people.

30 innocent tables with stationary heads.

Directions: Stir ingredients until thoroughly mixed. Await results.

---

Tu. 20. July heat. Ed. Tomlinson booms Teddy and wins Men's Extemp. Contest.

Wed. 21. GRAND RE-UNION! Dinner back at the old tables. Happy? Well, I guess! Penn-4, S-8; we clap Twink in the dining room.

Th. 22. Tables change again. Dean launches ire at E. Irwin and H. Inglis for unseemly loquacity in Collection. Consequently (?) missile from unknown would-be assassin hits Dean in dining room. Poetic justice? Staff of the Halcyon holds first meeting.

Fri. 23. Doc Hayes (Physics, not Pomes) demonstrates scientific baseball in Collection, while Ducky chases balls and lady Faculty watch in terror. Junior Noisy Hour Party; Emma Williams as Heroine Culin makes a hit.

Sat. 24. We come in second in Penn Relays. Senior Dance, mainly for lower class boys: "How great a little Stung Club can grow to be!"

Sun. 25. "So we went strolling." Old tables again.

Mon. 26. Rain arrives in time to spoil Social Hour. Dr. Palmer discourses on "Nuts" in Botany; Joe Sands sits up.

Tues. 27. H-O-T: HOT! Charla, Eliza, and Peggy Mac win Girls' Extemp. Say, what was Frances Maxwell talking about? Ethyl Smeltzer in Shakespeare Dec: "Would that this, too, too solid flesh would melt!"

Wed. 28. We win home Track Meet with N. Y. Jews, 59-57. Pete Hunter breaks Discus record. Baseball team loses to Army, 11-7.

Page Two Seventy

Th. 29. "Evangeline" Walker chosen May King on Asphilat after dinner. "Oh, yes, the table system is all right if you have luck, but Heaven help the other fellow!"

Fri. 30. Dr. Trotter in Collection says we're goats to break branches, but girls loot woods for May morning decorations.

MAY

Sat. 1. Annual May morning. Herschel Smith photographs Senior May Pole whenever Ellen comes round to his side. May King carried in state at head of the Royal Guard. Our own tables announced for following week; in dining room everyone claps, and then apologizes.

Sun. 2. Rain.

Mon. 3. Did you spot Miss Bronk's blue band? Some skypiece, as it were. Lloyd Lewis hanging round College; first time since that Soph Show write-up in the Phoenix.

Tu. 4. Phoenix night. Usual Post Office mob. Everybody doping out the Bookies.

Wed. 5. Penn grabs game from Baseball Team in the ninth, 3-1. Emma Williams elected President of Women's Student Government Association.

---

Th. 6. TAP-NIGHT. "Oh, where are my wandering Junior boys?" Gawth brings fudge to HALCYON meeting.

Fri. 7. The Association of Fossils arrives, and one of them gives us a "quay-sigh" speech in Collection.

Sat. 8. Germany torpedoes the Lusitania, and Dr. Martin gives the original bean feast to Football fellows and their girls.

Sun. 9. "Heinz" Recital in Collection.

Mon. 10. Mostly table parties.

Tu. 11. Our Prexy quotes the Prexy in Collection, and we clap. Dot Hanson in Heaven; the boys carry her up and down stairs!

Wed. 12. Palmer's Blushing Botany Belles take weekly picnic. Woods stripped like Belgium.

Th. 13. Wharton turned into Peanut Gallery for May Day Play. Bookies forcibly taken in. Goo Jellinghouse accompanies Denworth to his doom.

Fri. 14. Soph-Senior Picnic in Simons' woods. We give '15 the time of their lives, and incidentally have it ourselves.

Sat. 15. "Pep" a minus quantity at '16's last Junior Dance. Awful thought! We'll be having one ourselves next year! Penn Lacrosse men thrill girls at College Dance. Much Paul Jones.

Sun. 16. Miss Bronk falls up the stairs in meeting. Too much Junior Dance? Shep gives solo in singing, to the delight of three lone boys present.

Mon. 17. COLD! ! 1916 HALCYON appears at last. At first we thought it a Bible, but concluded it wasn't when we found Eddie Tomlinson was Business Manager. Devils win fight by default: the Monks had gone in to get warm, so the T. H. D. departed, singing "When Hell Freezes Over."

Tu. 18. Our dedicatee gives a few remarks on Sea Serpents in Collection, while Biology students take frantic notes. Senior Play practice. Tom McCabe as Bottom roars at all hours of the day and night.

Wed. 19. "1917 in Baseball" turns trick against the Fresh. "Reds" pitches. Biology Class told by Dr. Palmer that defectives shouldn't marry; and Bob Lippincott passes the pledge never to do so (What, never? Well, hardly ever!) All the class sign, but Bill Tomlinson only cuts out hairlips. Garnet licks Your-sinus in Tennis.

Th. 20. Cooky formation around the Sun. Dr. Miller says it's Ice Crystals, but we believe it an evil omen (Note: Maybe the Ed. will be assassinated). First Senior Singing on steps of Asphaltum. Walt Rittman speaks to Joseph Leidy.

Fri. 21. Michigan arrives, but also rain, and prospects for big game are drowned. Fresh girls' circus: Ethel Young as Eugenic Baby; also "Laurie Seamen" seen smoking and drinking in Bookie House! Big scandal! Wharton audience??? "To see or not to see; that is the question." Admission to shutter slits, two jitneys.

Sat. 22. Haverford Track turned into Swimming Meet by deluge, and we win. Indian Lacrosse team (descended from Rain-in-the-Face) show superior ability in swimming, sliding, splashing, wading, mud-eating, etc. Score: Opp.-7, S-0.

Sun. 23. Singing outdoors. Huck Berry accompanies hymns "on his old banjo."

Mon. 24. Nook Sellers applies for position as cook ( $\Delta \Lambda \Sigma$ ). Big fight in Senior Class Meeting: Shall play be given over again? Bob Roberts says, "Shakespeare never repeats."

Tu. 25. Rabbi Ben Ezra extends olive branch in Collection. "Let us have peace." Heaven again triumphs over Hell at the Cherry Tree. Victorious Monks are clapped and hissed by the femmes above.

Wed. 26. Botany Class caryatids, with books on heads, break up Prep. School picture. Every-other-day-rain rule continues; "How long, oh Lord, how long?" George School gets half holiday because Perce Harry makes Phi Beta Kappa; we wouldn't get one if Mitchell Palmer were President!

Th. 27. "Doc Hayes sang a poem"—(quotation from 1911 diary); history, like Ducky, is still repeating itself. Staff discovers that Gawth once took second prize at a Baby Show. Some Baby!

Fri. 28. Canadian Reciprocity in dining room. We cheer Toronto, and they return the compliment. Also licked us, 9-3. Doctor Goddard tells English '11 that he saw a ghost coming home one Saturday night. Why, Doctor Goddard!!!

Sat. 29. Herb. Brown plays, "Onward, Christian Soldiers" at College Dance. Dean stiffens, but refrains. Oppy takes Dolly to Kappa Sig. twelve-hour party (twelve noon to twelve midnight).

Sun. 30. Song of Deborah in meeting (Wasn't that her name?)

Mon. 31. Everybody "tenting to-night" at Chautauqua rehearsal. Ned Baker deposits contents of Helen Elmore's suit-case in front of Pet, and walks out of door. Sensation! Varsity men muff balls in Faculty-Senior Baseball Game.

JUNE

Tu. 1. Commencement in two weeks. As time shortens, Senior faces lengthen. Victor Band serenades Parrish from tent.

Wed. 2. "And the rain fell and the floods descended upon the earth." New Student Government rule: "No canoeing on front campus after seven P. M." Seniors try to make us stand for "Oh 1915, thee we honor," but we draw the line. Standing room only for Alma Mater and the Dioxygen.

Th. 3. Say, we're not Irish! Why the garlic in milk, cocoa, and ice cream? A few loyal Seniors sing in the cold.

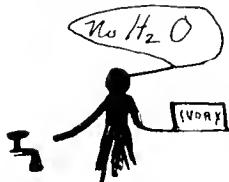

Fri. 4. Last Collection. "If ye have tears, prepare to shed them now"—but nobody did. Faculty-Senior Tea.

Sun. 6. Seniors speak in Meeting. We love the Seniors, but Oh, those exams! Duty calls us.

Mon. 7. Exams begin, particularly Botany. Landing outside the Biology Lab. fitted up with bedding for wounded and dying. Tenney and Gawth elected on the 'steenth ballot.

THE HALCYON OF NINETEEN SEVENTEEN

Fri. 18. Prep (short for preposterous) NIGHT. Catholic U. surrenders to basketball team.

Sat. 19. Would-be Orientals (showing through as Sophs) invade Collection. Wilson's famous walk comes in handy, and Huck Berry winks at the curtain to come across after the grand finale.

Sun. 20. College changes from the "Girl on the Magazine Cover" to "I've Got a Motter."

Mon. 21. Miss Burroughs adds color to the scene in Collection; Moral: "All eggs are not bad."

Tu. 22. Dr. Breck puts the "war" in Swarthmore, and Dr. Hull takes it out; name henceforth to be "Speacemore."

Wed. 23. Washington and Lee indulges in long range target practice at basket by the Trial and Error Method from other end of floor. Chorus: "Shoot." Basketball team of 1926 entertains between the halves. Asphaltum thinks it's a creek, and freezes. Carl Shrode takes a joy slide.

Fri. 25. Two Freshman boys take the Parrish elevator up, and can't get down. Psychology and the home floor win for Lehigh, 22-21.

Sat. 26. Grape Juice only at the Swarthmore Club Banquet.

Sun. 27. Bathing suits adorn Collection chandeliers during singing. We sing "For Those in Peril on the Sea."

Tu. 29. Leap Year Day in dining room. Boys get a much-needed rest.

MARCH

Wed. 1. Dr. Palmer repeats his Monday Botany lecture, jokes and all. Miss Lukens asks girls to keep off the Pets. "They're to furnish the hall, not to sit on."

Fri. 3. F. & M. Debate. "Philothoferth of Dethpair" (our team) win.

Sat. 4. Glee Club goes to West Chester. Gemmill's rabbit sick on College food.

Sun. 5. Meeting House Reception for Juniors. The Ed. drowns himself in tea.

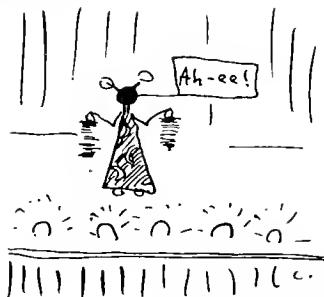

Mon. 6. Pace protests against applause, and gets some.

Tu. 7. "Rufus" saves 500 lives in Collection. He sells picture cards in the parlor after lunch, and the girls kiss him in the presence of the Dean.

Wed. 8. Physics Hayes in Collection says "Back to the mud in 500 years." Cheer up, Harvey, you'll soon be dead.

Th. 9. Seniors win swimming meet. Knut sinks to the bottom.

Fri. 10. The Swarthmore College Musical Clubs present Jim Melick as "Catherine Wright" in "The Concert."

---

Sun. 12. Second Glee Club Concert on the Pet after dinner. Millville High Vaudeville Troupe performs in Singing.

Mon. 13. Sharpless in Collection: "The aim of man is to graduate." Sliced peaches for dinner.

Tu. 14. Spreading chestnut tree by Wharton collapses after five weeks of chopping. Peach Jello for dinner.

Wed. 15. Baseball teams practice in snow shoes. Peach ice cream (We'll all be peaches soon!)

Monday - "Sliced"

Tuesday - "In Jello"

Wednesday - "Ice Cream"

Evolution of a Peach.

Th. 16. Three staff members get Phi Beta Kappa keys. Proper awe on the part of the rest of us.

Fri. 17. St. Patrick's Day. Green blossoms everywhere. Dean and Miss Gorham shine in "Perils of Pat." (Noisy Hour).

Sat. 18. The Big Noise (Alfred).

Sun. 19. Nothing, as usual.

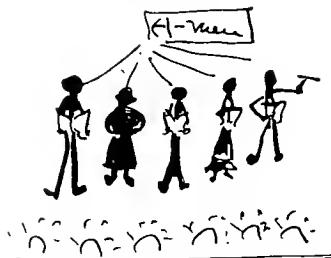

Mon. 20. Dean reads from Ecclesiastes: "Vanity of vanities, all is vanity." Griff comes in late and subsides!

Tu. 21. Prexy, the Dean, and Joe March stay for the non-required lecture on "Masters of Etching, Past and Gone."

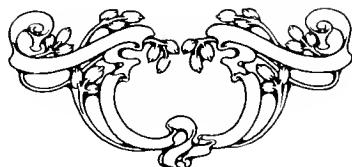

Wed. 22. Chicken a la King for dinner. '17 loses the Gym Meet by 2½ pts.

Th. 23. Farewell Staff meeting. Everybody jumps on R. D. B., the absent member.

Fri. 24. Beginning of vacation. Everybody beats it. So does the HALCYON. Hallelujah Chorus by the Staff. Vale.

1917 Halcyon Staff.

You Can Enjoy Beautiful Roses

In your garden, upon your lawn, or screening the fence and gracing the pergola, roses give the distinctive touch of refinement. You will find among our 400 varieties a rose for every need and for every climate. For more than half a century, we have been "doing one thing well." C. & J. Roses are all so carefully grown that they are guaranteed to grow and bloom.

Our handsome 1916 Rose and Floral Guide contains 98 pages with 85 illustrations, 14 in natural colors. It describes nearly 400 of the World's choicest roses—Nature's best, gathered from many lands. To make selection easy, 101 of the very choicest are marked with a ★ Exquisite Tea, hardy Rugosa, aristocratic Tree Roses, and graceful Ramblers. Whatever your taste or need, you will find the right roses listed in our Guide. It's free. Send for it now.

The best judgment of those most competent to advise is that every one possessed of sufficient property to warrant it should make a Will and name an Executor. This Company will act as your Executor, and will be glad to confer with you in respect to your Will.

A Trust created by Will or Deed, for the benefit of a widow and her children, or other dependent persons, or for carrying out some benevolent purpose, is a most excellent method of disposing of the whole or part of an estate. This Company acts as Trustee in such cases.

Scott Tissue Towels "Use like a Blotter"

in your kitchen you not only provide yourself with an individual towel that saves your linen and washing bills, but you also provide yourself with a time and labor saver of great value in your home work.

Know how to use them—"like a blotter"—and what to use them for.

For instance, Absorbent Scott-Tissue is fine for polishing cut glass, mirrors, silverware, piano keys, brassware; or cleaning range or stove or windows or fanects; Scott-Tissue is just the thing for absorbing grease from fried foods or absorbing spilt liquids. We can't begin to enumerate all the uses for Scott-Tissue here; only a trial in your home will convince you of its endless usefulness.

Scott-Tissue Towels come in roll form, 25c.
